BUDGET SYSTEM IS UPHELD

Congressional Leaders Rally to Its Defense.

MOVE SEEN TO DESTROY IT

National Interest, Says One Leader, Dictates That "This Business-Like and Efficient Instrument in Government Finance Be Maintained." "Only Way to Run the Government," Says Another.

Washington, Oct. 29.—Congressional leaders who had a hand in establishing the budget system and putting it into operation continue to rally to its defense against the campaign to destroy it.

Representative William S. Vare of Pennsylvania, second ranking member of the house appropriations committee, said:

"Any effort to attack the present national budget would be quickly defeated in congress. I am surprised to hear that such a movement is on foot. National interest dictates this business-like and efficient instrument in government finance be maintained. If taxes are to be lowered, the budget is necessary, because it is the only way that appropriations may be effectually regulated and kept within the national income. The resultant economy and efficiency and the end of extravagance entailed in adoption of the budget justifies further employment of the system. We have the spectacle of European nations living beyond their means before us to particularly recommend the budget."

Former Representative Walter M. Chandler of New York said:

"Abolish the budget system? Do that and you go back to the old days of waste and extravagance in government. Before the budget was established the heads of the various government departments asked and usually received from congress money far beyond the amount actually needed to run their departments. Should the head of a department discover near the end of the fiscal year that he was likely to have some money left over he began devising ways and means of spending the surplus. Under this system there was bound to be extravagance and waste. When the budget was established all this came to an end. This method is both business-like and scientific, and I am heartily opposed to any movement that would abolish it. It is the one sure method of keeping the expenses of the government within its income."

Representative John N. Sandlin of Louisiana stated: "Although I have not made a detailed study of the bureau of budget, I can see no reason for its abolition. It has done the work for which it was organized, and has undoubtedly saved money for the government. Before it is ridiculed it should be given a chance."

Representative Arthur M. Free of California declared: "I am heartily in favor of the budget system. It is the only way to run the government. You have a budget system in business, why not a budget system in government?"

INCOMES SHOW DECREASE

Dropped Nearly $8,000,000,000 Between 1920 and 1921.

Washington, Oct. 29.—American incomes subject to federal taxation dropped nearly $8,000,000,000 between 1920 and 1921, according to compilations completed by the internal revenue bureau. Income taxes paid the national government fell $1,280,000,000 during the same period, the figures reveal.

The decrease of nearly $8,000,000,000 in taxable income was divided almost equally between individuals on the one hand and corporations on the other. Corporate incomes were nearly cut in two from $7,903,000,000 to $4,336,000,000, while individual incomes dropped nearly 20 per cent from $23,700,000,000 to $19,600,000,000. There also was a drop of 600,000 in the number of individuals making income tax returns.

New York led the country with 1,066,637 returns, reporting incomes of $3,617,754,104 and taxes of $210,768,379. Pennsylvania was second, followed in order by Illinois, Massachusetts and California. Ohio, the only other state to report net incomes above a billion dollars, had 367,096 returns, $1,060,027,926 income and $33,574,094 tax.

VISITS BATTLEFIELDS

David Lloyd George Spends Profitable Day in Virginia.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 29.—David Lloyd George visited Confederate battlefields yesterday while on his way to this city.

Accompanied by Admiral Grayson, a native Virginian, he went first to the Salem church battlefield, then through Chancellorsville to the Stonewall Jackson monument, which he inspected with great interest. The drive to the Wilderness and Grant's headquarters followed. Lloyd George also learned much of the romantic history of Fredericksburg. He saw the old home of Mary Washington, mother of George Washington, and also Meditation rock, her favorite retreat for meditation and prayer.

Fredericksburg furnished seven presidents of the United States, namely, Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Harrison, Tyler and Taylor. Lloyd George was told that within a radius of 15 miles of Fredericksburg more battles were fought and more officers and privates were killed and wounded than in any similar territory in the United States. He also was told by a Confederate veteran that the world war never developed any men the equals of Generals Jackson and Lee.

Four persons were summoned by police at Los Angeles for questioning in connection with the death of Mrs. Ethel Williams, 25, cabaret singer, who was found murdered in her flat.

REACHES LIMIT OF CONCESSIONS

Poincare Says There Will Be No Reduction in Reparations.

REPLIES TO BALDWIN OFFER

French Premier Also Declares There Will Be No Evacuation of the Ruhr and That He Has Not Agreed to the Principle of an International Conference, but Has Given His Assent to an Inquiry by Experts.

Paris, Oct. 29.—No reduction in the reparations bill; no concessions to Germany; no evacuation of the Ruhr—these were the principal points in Premier Poincare's reply to Premier Baldwin in a speech at Sam-pigny.

"We have reached the limit of our concessions," said the French premier. "We will not go an inch further, and we will not surrender a sou of the amount due us."

Then the premier explained why he had given his assent to a commission of experts to go over the reparations question under the plan outlined by Secretary of State Hughes. He said: "This is a commission authorized under the treaty of Versailles, but it is expressly understood that it can not reduce Germany's bills. It can only recommend the advisability of temporarily reducing the annual payments."

The premier stated that in assenting to the conference of experts he had not agreed to the principle of an international conference, "which will not be held."

It is believed here that Poincare is determined to play the present strong position of France for all that it is worth, expecting that eventually England and the United States will be obliged by economic laws to accept his conditions before there can be any reduction in reparations or evacuation of the Ruhr, which will involve the cancellation of interallied debts.

AMERICAN INDIAN'S ANCESTOR FOUND

Two Skulls Link Red Men With Submen of Europe.

Los Angeles, Oct. 29.—The ancestor of the American Indian has been discovered.

Two pre-historic skulls, unearthed at Santa Barbara last week by an expedition of the Smithsonian institution, have upset all previous theories of the development of human life on the North American continent and have set the scientific world by the ears.

They are considered an archaeological "find" of the highest significance and are said to supply the long sought "missing link" between the American Indian and the primitive races that roamed the plains of Europe when the world was young.

John P. Harrington, Smithsonian archaeologist and head of the expedition that unearthed the skulls, is extremely conservative in discussing his momentous "find." But even the scientist's caution does not prohibit his pointing out certain characteristics of the skulls that place them definitely in the Paleolithic age.

"I am not prepared," said Mr. Harrington, "at this time to fix the age of the skulls. They are at least 5,000 years old, and it is probable they are of much greater antiquity. But their shape and contour indicate that they antedate the Neanderthal man. It is certain they are not the skulls of American Indians. Nor did they belong to apes. They lie somewhere between the two, and provide the link for which scientists have long been searching which will draw the curtain which has shrouded the progenitor of the American Indian. These skulls will link him with the 'submen' of the European continent. The Santa Barbara skull is that of a 'subman.'"

To Fight Against Privations.

Berlin, Oct. 29.—Neighborhood guilds, which will pool the resources of whole neighborhoods and stretch them to cover the necessities of all, are the latest project announced by the newly-founded league of all women's organizations in Berlin, to fight against the growing privation.

DOINGS IN OHIO

To Test Prohibition Law.

Columbus, Oct. 29.—The state prohibition enforcement law, under which liquor law violators may be sent to the penitentiary for a third conviction, is to be tested in the supreme court. The conviction is that of August Sissea of Newark, recently convicted of unlawful possession of intoxicants and given a penitentiary sentence on the grounds that he had been twice before convicted. His counsel, filing a motion for leave to file a petition in error, raised the point that first and second offenses must be affirmatively proved. It is also charged that the Anti-Saloon league counsel, prosecuting the case, acted improperly in adducing testimony with respect to an alleged and subsequent offense, prejudicing the jury thereby.

Wants State Roads Improved.

Columbus, Oct. 29.—The Ohio Good Roads Federation will ask the next legislature to provide for the improvement of 1,000 miles of state road each year for five years. It will show the assembly, by engineering data and other information, just what such a program will cost, and ask that the money be made available. Another thing that the federation will recommend is that some sort of a cost accounting system be applied to road building and road maintenance in the state.

Bomber Breaks Lifting Record.

Dayton, O., Oct. 29.—Carrying the greatest load an airplane has ever lifted from the ground, the Earling bomber, the world's largest flying machine, established an international weight carrying altitude and endurance record at Wilber Wright field. Nineteen bombs, weighing 6,992 pounds, were carried in the ship's hold. The six-motored craft remained in the air one hour, 19 minutes and 11 seconds, during which time an altitude of 5,000 feet was reached.

Ohio State Day Named.

Columbus, Oct. 29.—From coast to coast and in foreign lands alumni and former students of Ohio State university will rally Friday, Dec. 7, for the annual observance of "Ohio State Day." The date has just been fixed by proclamation of J. B. Nordholt, Toledo, president of the Ohio State University association, official organization of alumni and former students.

Bandits Get $7,500.

Columbus, Oct. 29.—Three youthful bandits, who held up the central office forces of the Piggly-Wiggly grocery chain here, successfully eluded police with their loot of $7,512. The money represented the day's receipts of the company's stores.

Leviathan's New Record.

London, Oct. 29.—The Leviathan was given a wonderful send-off after setting a new world's record for a round trip for a vessel of her size. Reaching Southampton Saturday morning at 9:50, the Leviathan occupied 26 hours preparing for her westward passage. In that time she discharged at Southampton docks 220 passengers, 682 baggage trunks, 342 tons of cargo, 4,370 mail bags, and pumped out 936 tons of oily water. She loaded 4,493 tons of oil, 32,011 tons of water, 83 tons of stores, 4,082 pieces of baggage, 43,000 pieces of linen and took aboard 2,000 passengers.

GERMANY FACES FATEFUL WEEK

Life of the Republic in Its Present Form at Stake.

UNITY OF REICH MENACED

Dictator Stresemann Sends Ultimatum to Radical Government of Saxony to Get Out—Also "Requests" Bavaria to Get Back Into Constitutional Lineup With the Reich—Socialists to Quit Berlin Cabinet.

Berlin, Oct. 29.—Germany is facing what is to be perhaps the most fateful week since the armistice that ended the world war.

The unity of the reich is at stake and the events of the next few days are expected, in political circles, to go a long way toward determining the very life of the republic in its present form.

Pressed by the nationalist elements on one hand and crowded by the Socialists in his own cabinet on the other, Chancellor Stresemann is beginning to manifest more and more a desire to become dictator in fact as well as in name.

With his ultimatum to the radical social-communist government of "Red Saxony" to "get out and be quick about it," and in sharp contrast to his polite "request" to Bavaria to get back into constitutional lineup with the reich, Stresemann is staking his all on "to be or not to be" dictator, and is ready to play his trump card—the reichswehr—against the radical Saxon government.

The Saxon government, with Premier Zeigner presiding, convened a special session. Premier Zeigner said: "I can not say what decision may be arrived at by the Saxon government, but I can tell you my own personal decision, and that is for the rejection of the Berlin ultimatum."

Later the Saxon government telephoned to Berlin: "There is no political reason for complying to the demand of the Berlin government. The proper authority in the matter is the Saxon diet and as long as it doesn't act, the government will remain. The government, however, will submit the matter to the diet and ask a vote of confidence."

The diet does not meet until Tuesday. Whether the Berlin government will carry out its threatened measures depends largely on the report of Herr Solman, Socialist minister of the interior of the Berlin government, who went to Dresden in an effort to effect mediation.

Meanwhile the Socialist labor unions in Germany, fearing the coming of dictatorship, are preparing to meet the emergency by considering the calling of a general strike.

There was much talk of answering Berlin's ultimatum with a general strike in Saxony and possibly in all the middle and north of Germany. In Munich a special council of the ministers has been called to determine Bavaria's attitude on Stresemann's request to return the reichswehr to the constitutional authority of Berlin. It was asserted at Munich, however, that there was little prospect of Bavaria acceding to the demands of Berlin.

FIVE MEN DROWNED

United States Submarine Sink in Collision With a Steamer.

Washington, Oct. 29.—Five enlisted men met their deaths when the United States submarine O-5 was sunk in collision with the steamer Abangarez in Limon bay.

An official report of the disaster was received at the navy department from the commandant of the submarine base at Coco Solo, Panama canal zone. The commandant's message follows:

"U. S. S. O-5 sunk in collision with steamer Abangarez at 6:24 a. m. this date, off Buoy 3, Limon bay. Following named men unaccounted for: Lawrence T. Brown, Tyngsboro, Mass., chief electrician's mate; Clyde E. Hughes, Manila, Ill., motor machinist's mate; Henry Breault, Grande Isle, Vt., torpedo man, second class; Thomas T. Mettler, 1221 South Twenty-sixth street, Philadelphia, Pa., freeman; Fred C. Smith, Cristobal, Canal Zone, mess attendant."

Grain exports from the United States last week amounted to 3,014,000 bushels, compared with 3,535,000 bushels the week previous.

SUPER-GOVERNMENT SEEN

Brookhart Alleges Financial Graft and Lobbying at Capital.

New Orleans, Oct. 29.—"America is under a super government today. It's the super government of high finance and of the railroads that are the pawns in the game of high finance. And the high temple of its priests and acolytes is the temple that has just been built in Washington by the United States chamber of commerce."

Senator Smith W. Brookhart, Republican of Iowa, who is here attending the New Orleans hearing of the senatorial committee on the 9-foot channel from lakes to gulf, made this statement.

"Conditions of financial graft and lobbying and political corruption are as bad at Washington today as they were in Mark Hanna's palmist days. If they're not worse," he continued. "They're more dangerous to American ideals of republican government than Hanna's days were, because the lobbyist and the leaders of the super government are not so crude as they were in the old days. If there was ever a time when the farmers and the workers of America to get together for a cleanup of existing conditions, now is the time."

According to Mr. Brookhart, Senator LaFollette is the "outstanding" Republican today, "but that doesn't mean he'll be nominated." Brookhart added, Brookhart accused the railroads, with three or four exceptions, of being hostile to the 9-foot channel project.

PUTS IT UP TO MELLON

Pinchot Would Have Government's Aid in Enforcing Dry Laws.

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 29.—Governor Pinchot in a letter to Secretary of Treasury Andrew S. Mellon put up to the federal government the question of strict enforcement of prohibition laws in Pennsylvania. In effect, he said he had gone as far as his power permits, but that the federal government has not given him the same co-operation he has given Washington. Two suggestions are made to the secretary by the governor. One of these is that state police be permitted access to all places holding federal liquor permits, and that permits be revoked, after hearing, if it is shown violation of law occurred. The governor quotes specific cases of violation.

Boasts of Former Beauty.

When you are old and peacefully settled behind your years it is a pardonable vanity to boast of how beautiful you were as a girl. The homeliest woman will do that. She may have a parchment complexion, a nose drawn up at the corners and spread like a bulbous knob at the end, thin lips that look like a puckered stitching, a mere wisp of hair, eyebrows so sketchy that they show like rubbed-out lines above her faded eyes; still, she will toss her palsied old head, give you a proud look and inform you that she was a famous beauty in her youth. She may, indeed, be telling the truth, because age does make astonishing changes in the human countenance. Nature seems to lose interest in you, once you have fulfilled your purpose. But my belief is that we only remember how beautiful we felt when we were young, whether we were or not.—Saturday Evening Post.

SITS IN JUDGMENT

By DOROTHY HANDLEY

© 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"I HAVE my opinion of a man who will go out evenings and leave his wife alone—" The rattlety clang of a passing trolley car in the noisy city street shut off all further sounds.

When it had passed, John Farwell, divesting himself of his coat in the boarding-house hall, heard another girlish voice take up the refrain.

"And he should be contented to stay quietly at home with his wife after his day of seeing and meeting people."

"Yes, it's only fair. I should certainly not stand it. Why, Pauline, I'll bet I could divorce a man for that."

To John, smoothing his hair before the glass of the golden oak hatrack, this pronouncement was little short of calamitous, in view of the fact that the owner of the last voice was his fiancée. He had never dreamed that his Molly would be that kind of wife.

Pauline, Molly's chum, was in the room the greater part of the evening, and during the rest of the time Molly's charms drove all other thoughts from his mind.

He thought of it on the way home.

"Jove!" he said; "I must straighten that matter out. I can't give up my club and good times with the boys. It's only once a week, and it seems to me—" And so his thoughts ran on, with about fifty duplications, during the time which elapsed before he next saw Molly.

But nothing was said on the subject at his next visit, when John's mind alternated between "speak of it now" and "guess I'll wait a few minutes."

By this time it must be quite clear to the reader that John was a youth who was mortally afraid of "starting anything," and perhaps would be willing to put up with anything rather than hurt one he loved. A fine trait, this, but like most virtues, it can be carried to extremes. John was in a fair way to carrying it to an extreme.

During the interval before his next visit he whipped himself up to the attack, and kept himself so for a few hours. Then the reaction would set in and he would tell himself he was a fool to upset the smoothness of their relations for a thing like that.

"If Molly feels like that about it, I'm not the one to make her miserable. She's sure one dandy little girl, and any man should be glad to be able to spend every minute with her that he could."

Finally the verdict passed by himself on himself was that he must give up his club and waive all opportunities and invitations to "go out with the boys."

"They'll laugh at me for an idiot, but none of them've got girls like Molly," he told himself.

And so they were married. Both were wearied of boarding-house life, and for a while the cozy little flat presided over by a jolly little wife filled John's needs. The evenings were taken up with trips to the theater, cards with their friends, either at the homes of friends or in their flat alone.

When John signified his intention of resigning from his club, the boys made gleeful fun of him.

"What's the matter—henpecked?" they wanted to know.

"Wait till you get a little wife like mine," was his answer.

As time passed and news was brought to him of the good times the boys were having, John's heart began to ache a little. For, perhaps due to an instinctive delicacy and tact in his relations with his fellow men, John was a great favorite with the boys, and had thoroughly enjoyed his little club.

There came to be hours when he told himself what a fool he had been not to straighten the thing out with Molly at the beginning—if she began leading him around by the nose like this, even though unaware that she was doing so, how would it end? He would be henpecked.

Thinking these thoughts one evening, Molly sitting by his side, the picture of domesticity, he fumbled restlessly with the newspaper. Suddenly Molly looked up from her darning and their eyes met. She laid down her work; a woman's intuition was at work.

"What is it, dear?" she asked, softly.

Something in her voice loosed the bonds.

"Oh, Molly, it's the club—I miss it so."

"The club? What club?"

"Why, don't you remember the club I used to belong to? I resigned without telling you—you never seemed to notice, anyway."

"Why, so you did belong—well, for goodness' sake, what did you resign for?" with great indignation.

"What for? Why, Molly, I heard you tell Pauline you never would stand a man's being out evenings and leaving you alone. I hated to give up the club like sin, but I hated worse to hurt you."

Molly sprang up and nearly strangled him on the spot.

"Why, bless your old heart," she cried. "I can remember the discussion Pauline and I had—but that wasn't it at all—you've got me altogether wrong. I guess you just didn't hear all I said."

John's eyes popped open.

"That's exactly what you said about it—you even said you would divorce a husband—"

"Who went out evenings and left a wife alone who was an invalid," finished Molly, triumphantly. "Do I look like an invalid, silly?"

FOSSIL CHANGES IDEAS OF BOTANICAL HISTORY

Search Rewarded by Important Geological Find.

Chicago.—Discovery of the stem of a plant similar to that of a corn stalk in a lump of limestone found imbedded in a coal seam in Illinois has changed hitherto accepted ideas of plant evolution and pushed the mystery of the origin of flowering plants millions of years further back into the geological past. Prof. A. C. Noe, paleobotanist for the University of Chicago, unearthed the revolutionary evidence after a systematic search.

The strata from which he obtained the limestone lump, or "coal ball," was identified as belonging to the carboniferous, or great coal, age of the Paleozoic era, the next to the oldest of the four great geological time divisions which contain the fossil record of the past life on the earth. He classified the fossil stem as that of an angiosperm, or a flowering plant which had its seed inclosed in a seed container, as are the seeds of our apple, rose and oak.

No flowering plants of this sort have heretofore been proved to have grown so far back as this period of ancient geological times. The specimens previously reported of land plants with such highly organized structure have been found in parts of the earth's crust formed during the Mesozoic era, or geological middle ages, millions of years nearer to the present time.

Botanists have assumed from such evidence that the flowering plants had just begun to appear about the latter part of the age when the plants that form our coal flourished. They have expected to find the more primitive flowering plants at this earlier time. Professor Noe's discovery in the coal measures of a plant representing what had been taken to be a far advanced stage in plant evolution indicates that land plants must have gone through an enormously long period of development before the earliest period recorded in the fossil rocks.

MISS LI BREAKS ANCIENT TRADITION OF CHINESE

Breaking a tradition of ancient China by traveling without an entourage, Miss Grace Li, demure daughter of Li Yuan-Hung, president of the Chinese republic, arrived at Wellesley, Mass., accompanied only by Miss Harriet Chou, and rented a hall bedroom in a small boarding house on a side street. The girls entered Wellesley to take a two year course in political economy. Miss Li said she believed in woman suffrage and that Chinese girls are no longer betrothed in infancy. "We are not bossed nowadays," she added. She is unmarried, she said, because she had never seen a man she wanted to marry.

California's Governor Seeks County Supervisor

Sacramento, Cal.—The worm has turned and the job really seeks the man. Gov. Friend W. Richardson is in the unusual position of having a political plum which apparently nobody wants. It is in Alpine county, where the reluctance of the inhabitants to hold office has caused the governor to have posted in the courthouse at Markleville a notice calling for applicants for appointment as supervisor.

Supervisor George H. Luhrs of Alpine county created the vacancy by resigning. Patiently the governor waited for the army of deserving aspirants. None came. When he decided to advertise, he found there was no newspaper published in the county.

Ex-German Kaiser Now Seeks Greater Seclusion

Doorn.—Instead of time softening the seclusion of the former German emperor, he is about to retire even more completely from the gaze of the sightseer, for he has ordered the erection of a barricade to prevent his residence from being overlooked from the highroad. The framework for the new screen, which is eight feet high, will successfully prevent anyone from getting even a fleeting glimpse of the fretful monarch as he walks in his garden.

The recent publicity given to a bonfire celebration in the grounds of Doorn house is said to have been the motive for the greater privacy.

Sensible Mr. Dubwaite.
"Did you ever come in unexpectedly and find your office boy reclining in your easy chair, with his feet propped up on your desk?" "Oh yes," replied Mr. Dubwaite. "And what did you do?" "I registered a mental vow that I would quit seeing him a bad example."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

EGG CROP

This is Time of the Year for Hens and Pullets to Work Overtime.

During the next few weeks the price of eggs will be the highest of the year. Shippers from Pickaway county who are sending select white eggs to Pittsburgh and New York markets are receiving from fifty-five to sixty-five cents per dozen for the eggs at those markets. The local price is steadily advancing and poultrymen at this season of the year can well afford to do everything in their power to make the hens and pullets lay.

This is a good time of the year to see that the well developed pullets are housed and are made to work about fourteen hours a day. This can be done by the use of lights in the hen house, either early in the morning or immediately following sun down. Records in the Farm Bureau office show that poultrymen using lights have gotten an increase of twenty-five to fifty per cent in egg production during the season of high prices.

The flock of well developed pullets properly fed and working fourteen hours a day may be expected to lay one dozen eggs each during the month of November. However, the average flock of hens during the month of November will lay from three to five eggs each. The successful poultryman must make most of his money during the period of high prices; all this can only be done thru the best known practices of poultry husbandry.

STATE BANKS PROGRESSIVE

Steady Increase Shown in Resources and Deposits.

Columbus, Oct. 29.—For the past two years and a half there has been a steady increase in resources and deposits of state banks, according to a statement issued today by H. E. Scott, superintendent of banks of Ohio, showing the resources and the deposits of these institutions now to be the highest ever recorded. Resources of these banks, 750 in number, as shown by the call of Sept. 14, 1923, just compiled, total $1,721,549,741, an increase of $32,868,731 since the preceding call of June 30, and an increase of $173,153,031 since the call of Sept. 15, 1922. Total deposits on Sept. 14, 1923, were $1,485,074,033, an increase of $28,229,802 since June 30, and an increase of $157,627,142 since Sept. 15, 1922.

"This splendid record demonstrates that the banking institutions of the state are progressive and well managed, and that the practice of thrift has taken a firm, extensive hold upon its people," declared Superintendent Scott. The statement asserts general financial, trade and industrial conditions are excellent, with prospects for the future exceedingly reassuring.

Remarkable Sleep-Walking.

A boy told his parents one morning that the previous night he had dreamed he got out of bed and climbed to the summit of an enormous rock, where he discovered an eagle's nest which he brought away with him and placed beneath his bed. It was discovered later that these events had actually taken place. The preciple he had ascended was of a nature that baffled even the most experienced mountaineers, and the nest was discovered beneath his bed, just as he had stated.—Exclamation.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

LEGION AN AID TO FARMERS

Employment Bureau Operated in South Dakota Supplied Men During Harvest Season.

An American Legion employment bureau, operated in South Dakota during the harvest season, is regarded as having been one of the most effective checks in the spread of "I. W. W."-ism in the North and West. Through the services of the Legion's bureau hundreds of men known to be of non-radical tendencies were sent to the farmers of the Dakotas to obtain work, the radical type staying away from the Legion's employment agents.

The bureau was instituted by the Sidney E. Smith post of the Legion at Aberdeen, S. D. Service was rendered for a period of eight weeks, during which time the Legion placed 750 men of 1,100 registering, without cost. In some instances these men were sent 200 miles from the agency to a farmer who had turned to the Legion to obtain reliable help in harvesting his big crops.

But service did not stop with jobs alone. Many of the men arrived at the Legion tents, "broke," hungry and dirty. The Legion men provided 800 men with meals, gave lodging to 400 men, and arranged for a large number to receive free shower baths. Odd jobs were found for a large number to fill in until farm employment would be obtained.

Local police regarded a slip from the American Legion employment bureau as sufficient evidence that the man was all right, but those who did not have the Legion cards were usually told to move on. The project was given endorsement of federal, state and municipal authorities.

THOUSANDS IN BIG CONTEST

Many School Children Trying for American Legion's Americanism Prize Essay Cash.

Four hundred thousand American school children are participating in the American Legion's national essay contest on "Why America Should Prohibit Immigration for Five Years," according to a recent announcement of the Legion's national Americanism commission. Prizes amounting to $1,500, and medals for winning contestants of each state are offered.

The contest is open to all boys and girls between the ages of twelve and eighteen years; only one essay may be submitted by a contestant, and essays must be limited to 500 words each. Prize winners must use the money for scholarships in colleges of their own selection. First prize is $750, second $500, and third, $250. In addition to the cash prizes the best paper in each state will be awarded a silver medal, the second best paper a bronze medal, and the third a certificate of merit from the national office of the Legion.

The contest will be held through the counties and states. The three best essays in the states will be forwarded to the office of the national Americanism commission of the Legion, where they will be judged for national honors.

"To promote interest in patriotism among the younger generation and to foster education," is the announced purpose of the contest.

LEGION PLANS TO AID POLES

Organization Will Endeavor to Have Naturalization Requirements Amended in Their Favor.

The assistance of the American Legion has been asked for a group of American-born men who seek easing of naturalization laws because of war service in the Polish army.

"Haller's Army," a contingent of American Poles, fought at the side of allied troops all through the war. Their service caused them to lose rights as American citizens, and in order to obtain citizenship they must pass through the same formalities as would an alien seeking naturalization.

The veterans base their plea for the Legion's aid on the fact that they served with allied troops and should be entitled to naturalization by display of an honorable discharge and testimony of witnesses to their service. Others in this army were citizens of Poland, then subjugated by the enemy, and were classed as enemy aliens, although they fought with the allies. Efforts will be made to reduce naturalization requirements for these men, as well as those who were previously citizens of the United States.

To Aid in Conserving Forests.

The American Legion will assist in the conservation of the giant redwood forests of California from inroads by lumbermen and destruction by fire. Recent action by the organization provides for co-operation with other agencies seeking to save the forest monarchs. If any preserve or park is created, it has been suggested to the Legion that it be named in honor of Joyce Kilmer, poet-soldier of the A. E. F., who died in France.

SERIOUS CHARGE

Joseph Gray Accused of Rape on Eight Year Old Girl.

Joseph Gray, 23, formerly of Cleveland, employed until a short time ago on the T. Carroll farm north of Kings-ton, was arrested in Chillicothe Friday on a charge of rape preferred by the father of 8 year old Margery Carroll, whom he is charged with having criminally assaulted last Monday night October 22.

Gray, who formerly was employed by Carroll was arrested while driving a team in Chillicothe.

The crime is alleged to have taken place when Carroll and his wife had gone to Chillicothe leaving Gray to take care of the other daughter, Margery and a boy about 10 years old.

Constable Wash Darling brought Gray to this city Saturday and placed him in the county jail.

The accused had a hearing before Justice E. C. Friece Monday and was bound over to the grand jury in the sum of $1000. In default of bail he was remanded to jail.

Not a "Cheap Duchess." Everyone told stories about Queen Victoria. The one I liked best was of her correction of a draft letter to say that the duchess of Connaught was to join the queen's train. The queen wrote in pencil on the draft, "You should always describe the duchess as 'her royal highness,' to show that she is not a common duchess." —From "The First World War," by Colonel Repington.

AMUSEMENTS

A photoplay based on the play which a few years ago was one of the hits of Broadway is "Success" scheduled for presentation on Monday at the Met theater with Brandon Tynan the stage star in the role which he originally created in the spoken story and the excellence of the cast play. The dramatic interest in the which interprets the various roles should make the presentation a distinct hit.

"Success" is a story of the theater, but unlike many of the type, this is said to have been written by persons familiar with the intimate details of life behind the footlights. Its authors have managed to capture the spirit and atmosphere of the playhouse, and the characters which they have introduced are all faithful, actual types.

In addition to Mr. Tynan, the cast includes the delightful screen actress, Mary Astor, as the talented daughter; Naomi Childers as the mother; and Dore Davidson, Lionel Adams, Stanley Hedges, Robert Lee Keeling, Billy Quirk and others. The photoplay is presented by Murray W. Garsson, and released by Metro Pictures Corporation. It is a Ralph Ince production, written and adapted by Adeline Leitzbach and Theodore A. Liebler Jr. George V. Hobart wrote the titles.

U.S. LEADS WORLD IN AERONAUTICS

Report by Army Air Service Says Americans Excel in Speed Records, Etc.

Washington.—The army air service in a report just issued here claims that the United States, which was so backward in aeronautics in the perilous World war days, has taken the lead over the rest of the world within the last year in development of the airplane motor and other phases of aircraft construction.

The air service declares that this superiority is demonstrated primarily by the fact that Americans have taken practically all the world's airplane records during the last ten months. Credit for improvements along technical lines which have made possible this record is given to the air service engineering division at McCook field, Dayton, O., the bureau of standards and the national advisory committee for aeronautics.

Vast Improvement Made.
The long list of records attained by army pilots have been achieved, the report states, because of the greatly increased efficiency of the new planes and engines. This increased efficiency, it is claimed, is the result of the combined efforts of private manufacturers and the engineering division in experimentation and research work.

In airplane design great progress has been made along the line of producing more efficient wings as well as greater structural strength. The study of the substitution of various metals and alloys for former construction materials has been exhaustive, with the result that a better grade of durability is being produced in America now than in any other country of the world.

Liberty Motor Triumph.
To the improvement of the wartime Liberty engine is attributed the success of the transcontinental flight. Such a performance reflects to the credit of the engine with which the airplane was equipped, because a more severe and gruelling test hardly could be imposed.

In the Pulitzer trophy race, the report says, there again was evidenced improvement in airplane engine design when the tremendous horsepower of the engine is compared with the fragile craft which it was required to drive through the air at nearly 250 miles an hour.

Keeping abreast with the world's efforts to develop a flying machine that could ascend and descend vertically the army air service, the report points out, produced during the year the Dushant helicopter. This machine, built entirely within the service, is among the first successful machines of its type.

New Invention Will Steady Guns on Ships

Chatham, England.—Important experiments are being made here with a gyroscopic instrument designed to abolish the rolling of warships. The apparatus has been fitted to a ship in the Chatham dockyard.

Thorough tests are to be made at sea. It is generally agreed that if the invention proves a success it will have an almost revolutionary effect on naval warfare, because one of the greatest difficulties which the naval service has to encounter at present is the continual rolling of the ship. By the introduction of large bilge keels and other improvements in design, naval architects have been able to reduce the rolling very considerably during the last few years, but many difficulties still present themselves. The modern battleship is so enormously heavy that, once she starts rolling, a long time elapses before she recovers her balance.

Heirs to Sue for Lots Valued at $75,000,000

Lexington, Ky.—Final arrangements for filing suit against present occupants of property in the heart of New York valued at more than $75,000,000, will be made by heirs of Robert Edwards at a meeting to be held here, it was decided by more than 100 heirs who gathered in a hotel here. It is claimed Robert Edwards owned 77 acres of land in what is now in the fifth ward of Manhattan borough, but that he died intestate during the Revolutionary war after leaving the property for 99 years. When the lease expired the property was sold.

The Edwards heirs scattered about Kentucky and Ohio, have been investigating the situation for two or three years.

Boy Makes $2,500 on $24 Investment

Chicago.—How an office boy invested $24 and made a profit of 10,000 per cent was related by post office officials here. A man tried to sell a Chicago business man a block of air-mail stamps, on which an airplane was printed inverted by mistake, but the man refused. The office boy, hearing of the offer, bought the stamps for $24. Recently he sold them for $2,500 to Col. E. R. Green, son of Mrs. Hetty Green.

SUDDEN DEATH

Lifeless Body of Peter F. Cook Found by His Mother.

Peter Frederick Cook died suddenly at his home on Pleasant street this morning at six o'clock. The deceased returned home Sunday evening between eight and nine o'clock but instead of entering the house went to the rear and sat down in a swing on a porch. He was found by his mother this morning still sitting in the swing but had been dead some time as rigor mortis had set in.

The deceased was born in this city December 17, 1868, and was the son of George and Mary Scherr Cook. His mother and one sister, Miss Kate Cook of Kingston, survive.

The deceased was a member of Philos lodge, Knights of Pythias.

The funeral services will be held Wednesday morning at his home on Pleasant street at ten o'clock. Rev. Floyd E. Logee will officiate. Interment in the Kingston cemetery.

The coronor, Dr. O. H. Dunton, viewed the remains, which were later removed to the undertaking establishment of Mader & Ebert where they will be prepared for burial and probably a post mortem will be held to ascertain the cause of the man's death.

FARM BUREAU

Makes Recommendations on Proposals to be Voted on November 6.

At a joint meeting of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation and the Ohio State Grange held in Columbus October 9, they considered the constitutional amendments and legislative proposals to be voted on at the coming election, November 6, and took action as follows: Constitutional amendment on Workmen's Compensation, the recommendation is to vote "yes."

On elective franchise to strike out the words "white, male," no recommendation is made.

On the proposed amendment which deals with the publication of notice of proposed laws or constitutional amendments, together with arguments for and against in newspapers the recommendation is to vote "yes."

No recommendation is made on the Taft taxation measure, neither is any recommendation made on the Albaugh Assessors' law.

On the old age pension law the recommendation is to vote "no."

McADOO ON DRY LAWS

Comes Out Strongly For Enforcement of Prohibition.

New York, Oct. 29.—William Gibbs McAdoo, who is known to be actively organizing his forces with a view to securing the Democratic nomination for president, came out for prohibition enforcement. His emphatic words on the prohibition question followed those of Henry Ford, who said he would support President Coolidge in the next campaign if the president would enforce the prohibition laws.

While McAdoo did not say he would use the military and naval forces to enforce the law, as Mr. Ford did, McAdoo did say he would like to see every resource of the government used to the utmost to wipe out the disgrace of prohibition violations. He intimated that the efforts so far made on the part of the government showed inefficiency. "It is the duty of the states to see that the prohibition law is enforced just as much as it is the duty of the federal government to do so," he said.

Donahay Denies Story.

Columbus, Oct. 29.—Governor Donahay, on his return from the east, flouted the statement attributed to him to the effect that he would support President Coolidge in the 1924 campaign, if Governor Al Smith of New York is the Democratic nominee. "I made no such statement," said the governor. "It simply is another case of somebody trying to get me in bad with the people of Ohio, but depend on it Vic Donahay is capable of taking care of himself."

Problem in Mathematics.

Two men resolved to take a barrel of cider to a race meeting and there make some money by selling it. In order to be quite sure that they should make money they agreed that if they drank any on the way they should pay for it.

Having no cart, they resolved to roll the barrel to the course, and as it was a hot day they very soon became tired and thirsty.

First Bill had a drink and handed his twopence to Tom, and then Tom had one and paid Bill—and so on.

When they finally reached their destination they found that the barrel was empty. Then came the sharing of the proceeds.

The cider was gone, but where was the money? They could account for twopence, but, alas, where was the rest?

COLOR IN HOMES

Too Much White in Rooms Causes Nervousness.

Writer Tells of Experiment He Made in Friend's Home and the Result.

Are homes too "white"? I ask the question, and give the reply—a most emphatic "Yes!" says a writer.

A few weeks ago I was invited to stay for a few days with a friend. My mission—I am credited with being of the "happy-and-bright" type—was to cheer her up. She wasn't exactly ill, but she was nervous and depressed. Life seemed not to hold the slightest attraction for her. Yet she was well off, and was in the enviable position of being able to gratify any reasonable wish or want.

I did my best to cheer her, but after a day or two I not only knew that I was not succeeding, but felt I was getting in the dumps myself! Thereupon, faced with an effect, I determined to find the cause. And quite suddenly I knew what it was. White!

My bedroom was white—furniture, curtains, toilet ware, wall paper. The floor was hallowed and the dominant color was white. The two rugs were white. The only thing in the room that wasn't white was my own special piece of soap.

The bathroom was all white. And downstairs, in the dining room, there were white curtains, and a white breakfast service on a white tablecloth. And before the fire was spread a beautiful white rug.

It was the breakfast service that gave me the key to my growing depression. Generally, I thoroughly enjoy my breakfast, but white cups and saucers, white plates, white jam-jars, white teapot, white cream jug put me completely "off."

My friend was in her usual sad, resigned, depressed state. Remembering my "cheer-up" mission, I asked if I might, on the morrow, make a few alterations. She didn't mind what I did; she had no curiosity, even, as to my intentions.

I was obliged to take her cook into my confidence, and was lucky enough to gain her as an ally.

Next morning I was down first. I wanted to watch my friend's face when she came to breakfast. It lit up. Some of the depression lifted, and her eyes shone as she said that one word, "Oh!"

A breakfast service of blue and gold blazed on the table; the white muslin window curtains had gone, and apple-green casements were in their place; a ghastly aspidistra that had stood for years and years and years before one of the windows had been displaced in favor of a gorgeous azalea; the white rug had been replaced by a warm-colored Axminster. And for breakfast there were no eggs and no bacon. Instead, there were rissoles, cold salmon and a lovely sole.

My friend, for once, ate a breakfast. And she laughed several times. "It does make a difference, my dear, doesn't it?" she said. And I agreed. Then I told her the truth—that she had been suffering from too much white and too much sameness in food. Eggs and bacon for breakfast 313 times a year, and sausages and bacon 52 times—on Sundays! Eaten off white plates, too!

Now my friend is cured. I pushed her on relentlessly, to make her home colored and cheerful, and when I came away she was as happy as a sandboy. The last touch had been to have her white-painted stairs redone a warm and rich mahogany. No more of the tyranny of white for her!—London Answers.

Advance Copy.

It is well known that orators whose speeches are in demand by the press frequently send copies for publication before the scheduled event. This innocent dodge bespeaks an optimistic trust in fate but it isn't in the same class with the orator who sent 39 pages of typewritten "report" on his coming speech. On page 30 occurred the timely suggestion: "But it is growing late and I must close." His typed report bore this legend in brackets: (Cries of "No, no! Go on! Go on!")

Taking It Out in Trade.

The minister went to the village barber, with whom he was at loggerheads, for a shave. When it was finished he proffered the usual dime.

"I'll take it in preaching!" replied the barber, refusing the coin.

"My friend," rejoined the minister, with dignity, "I haven't 10-cent sermons."

"That's all right, sir!" retorted the barber. "I'll come twice!"

The Never-Said.

"Yes, dear; I have been playing poker. I was not detained at the office."

"That hair you found on my shoulder, love, is from my stenographer's head."

"Yes, judge, my home brew has an alcoholic content of six per cent."

"Your honor, I was driving forty-eight miles an hour because I was in a hurry."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

A Little Fun for Himself.

"Well, Vaughn, how's your sweet-heart?"

"We're not friends any more."

"Well, you're going to make up, aren't you?"

"Sure, but I'm going to play insulted for about a week and spend some of my money on myself."

INSTANT DEATH

Everett Lester Fell Under Wheels of Moving Train Sunday.

Everett Lester, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Lester, 536 East Rich street, Columbus, was instantly killed Sunday afternoon at Lockbourne when he fell off a Norfolk & Western freight train on which he had been riding. The boy boarded the train in this city to return home. At Lockbourne the train stopped and in starting lurched so violently that he was thrown beneath it and the wheels passed over his body, cutting it completely in two. Both of his legs and arms were broken. The body was taken to Columbus. When his mother was notified she collapsed and is in a serious condition.

Hotel Stenographer

BY ROE FULKERSON

"That was a nice letter," said the Hotel Stenographer, putting it back into its envelope. "From a man?" asked the House Detective.

"Yep," answered the girl. "A fellow who travels most of the time. He can surely spread affectionate words over a page like some kid smearing apple butter over a large slice of bread."

"Serious?" asked the House Detective.

"Kelly, I will never marry a man because he writes good letters and poor, short checks. I want to marry a guy who has no cramp in his check writing hand."

"Marrying, Kelly is like a lot of other things. A drum major, leading a minstrel show parade, twirling a baton and tossing it up in the air and catching it, seems to be doing something mighty easy. But just try it once."

"Go into a Chinese restaurant and watch an almond-eyed Chinaman eat in rice with a pair of chopsticks. He elevates it with all the ease and grace imaginable. It looks easy, but if you take a pair and try it, it will rain rice all over the neighborhood."

"I saw a girl in a vaudeville show, turn a cartwheel as a finish to a dance. It looked so easy I tried it at a hen party that night and knocked over a piano lamp and sprained my ankle."

"Being married is like that, Kelly. Watching married people, you see only the exhibition part of the sketch. You do not see the rehearsals where they learn to endure one another."

"It looks mighty easy till you try it. 'It wouldn't be so bad, Kelly, only you cannot marry without marrying a man. There is the tough part.'"

"All men ain't tough," comforted Kelly.

Farming Adapted to Given Region

In Making Change Physical Factors Such as Soil and Climate Are Important.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

To stick to cotton or to change to corn and hogs, to grow wheat and oats or to go into dairying, or to change to any other type of farming which may at the time seem to offer more profitable returns than the prevailing type, is a question ever present in great farming regions, and one which is often keenly considered in time of agricultural depression. In attempting to make such changes serious errors are almost certain to be made, says the United States Department of Agriculture, unless those who are directing the movement have a thorough understanding of the forces which control the types of farming adapted to the different regions.

Enterprises Best Adapted.

It is possible, at least in a general way, says the department, to determine what farm enterprises are adapted to a region by studying the physical, biological, and economic conditions prevailing there, and the adaptability of various enterprises to these conditions. An analysis of the types of farming in the United States has been made on this basis and the discussion is presented in Farmers' Bulletin No. 1289, Distribution of Types of Farming in the United States, just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Physical factors such as soil and climatic conditions play an important part in the type of farming adaptable to a given region. Temperature limits the northern distribution of cotton, southern distribution of wheat, and northern distribution of corn. Rainfall and length of growing season are other important factors the effects of which are very apparent in our agriculture.

Factors of Second Class.

The second class of factors discussed in the bulletin is called biological factors. The effect of the boll weevil in reducing cotton acreage near the Gulf and Atlantic coasts is an example. The chinch bug has reduced the acreage of corn in southern Illinois, and the Hessian fly has changed the date of seeding winter wheat and has probably reduced the acreage of this crop in some localities. Many other cases are cited in which insect pests and fungous diseases are determining factors.

In the third class are economic factors, such as cost of transportation and distance from market. Another important one is competition with regions which can produce more cheaply. This last is a factor in limiting the acreage of corn, oats, wheat, barley, and rye in those parts of New England where these crops thrive.

The bulletin aims to make clear the part these fundamental factors play in determining the possibility of establishing on a profitable basis a new or different type of farming, and to show that the kind of farming which prevails is based on them, rather than on the desires or whims of the farmers. A copy of the bulletin may be secured from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., as long as the supply lasts.

Internal Freezing Does Much Harm to Potatoes

Internal freezing injury, or frost necrosis, occurs when potatoes are exposed to severe frosts, temperatures below twenty-eight degrees Fahrenheit. The tubers show dark blotches in the flesh when they are cut open and allowed to stand a short time. The spots are usually most marked at the stem end, but they are scattered irregularly through the outer flesh or in a fine network or ring. Ordinarily the injury is detected only upon cutting, although the affected tubers will more than the normal ones in storage.

Potatoes may actually be frozen solid throughout, becoming soft and mushy on thawing. As a result of coming in contact with a cold wall in storage, or being left above the ground before digging, potatoes may freeze on one side. Tubers injured in this way are easily sorted out.

"Turning sweet" is due to prolonged storage at low temperatures, twenty-nine to thirty-four degrees Fahrenheit, not to real freezing. Tubers that have never been frost bitten may show this injury.

Have a good thermometer in the room where potatoes are stored and keep the temperature above twenty-eight degrees Fahrenheit.

When shipping potatoes during cold weather in a heated car, provide for some circulation of air from the stove to prevent black heart in the potatoes near the heat and frost injury in those in the outer parts of the car.

Ducks Kept on Average

Farms of Mixed Breeds

There are eleven standard breeds of ducks which have been admitted to the American standard of perfection. These breeds may be divided into three classes: (1) The meat class, including the Pekin, Aylesbury, Muscovy, Rouen, Cayuga, Buff and Swedish; (2) the egg class, represented by the Runner; and (3) the ornamental class, composed of the Call, the Crested White and the Black East India. The ducks commonly kept on many farms are of mixed breeding, and are generally of small size, poor layers, and undesirable types of market duck. Except the Muscovy, all our economic breeds of ducks are said to have originated from the mallard or wild duck.

"French Leave."

The familiar expression "to take French leave" arose in the early part of the Eighteenth century, through certain guests in the salons of France, not aware of the higher acts of courtesy, leaving without saying good-by to the host or hostess. The practice spread to society in other countries. Therefore, if a man left without saying good-by to his host it was said he took "French leave."

HOPE TO REDEEM THE ILLITERATES

Ten Million Persons in U. S. Who Cannot Read or Write.

SOME SECTIONS VERY BAD

The census takers at the beginning of each decade are supposed to ask every person in the United States this question, "Can you read and write?" Five million men and women in this country, in round numbers, answered in 1920, "I cannot." They were too honest to deny their illiteracy or, in some cases, were no doubt lacking in pride and sensitiveness about it, or were led by fear of punishment to divulge what, to many illiterates, is their dark secret. Millions, however, failed to confess and deliberately concealed their illiteracy. Some in their ignorance having the conception of Uncle Sam as a meddling old man, decided that their illiteracy was none of his business. Others deluded themselves into thinking that the scrawl which they could trace across the paper was writing, although no one else would ever classify it as such.

10,000,000 Illiterates in United States. In its study of illiteracy conditions the illiteracy commission of the National Educational association has carefully analyzed the statistics gathered by the federal census bureau and has followed the matter into the states and localities whence these reports were made up. The commission is convinced that the census taken by the federal government in 1920 showing 4,931,905 illiterates, and based on the confession of the individual, is not a complete and accurate report. If a careful census were taken in which every individual should be put to the test of reading simple paragraphs in the newspapers and writing simple sentences, the number of illiterates in this country, according to the commission, would approximate 10,000,000 and the number of near-illiterates would be equally as large. Twenty million illiterates and near-illiterates in the United States! It does not take a vivid imagination to see the potentialities in this vast illiterate population, or a mathematician to calculate what they might add to the nation if redeemed.

Confused by Dollar Bill.

Some illiterates are grossly ignorant. A woman who learned recently to read and write said, "I didn't know how ignorant I was. Why, I didn't know a $1 bill from a $2 bill until I was twenty-four years of age." A teacher who taught an illiterate man of thirty exclaimed, "I didn't know such colossal ignorance could exist. I could teach him anything and it would be something that he didn't know. He didn't even know how many months there are in the year." An officer in the American army said in my presence in 1918, "I have three men in my company, native born, who cannot count up to four." Some illiterates have knowledge of a sort, or rather a half-knowledge, which could be speedily extended, completed and adapted to use if connected with the world through education. Davey, the great tree surgeon and author, who learned to read and write after the age of twenty-nine, is one of the numerous examples of this fact.

Inequality of opportunity was never more strikingly pictured than in the illiteracy figures on record at Washington. They tell the story of youths in one section who enjoy the best of opportunities and the tragic story of youths in another who enjoy practically none. There is a state with little more than 1 per cent illiteracy and there is a state with 21.9. There are nine states with little more than 2 per cent of its people illiterate and there are eleven states where 10 per cent of the people are unable to read and write.

Conditions Almost Barbaric.

Numerous counties in the United States have a fraction of 1 per cent illiteracy, and on the other hand, there are fifty-six counties that have more than 30 per cent and 110 counties with more than 25 per cent illiteracy. And there are counties in the United States where more than 50 per cent of the people are unable to read and write.

In the most illiterate sections conditions approach the barbaric. Marriage has no sanctity whatever and commerce is carried on through barter and trade, as when America was roamed over by savage Indians. Morality is rare in densely illiterate regions. An exchange of wives for the week-end is a practice carried on in certain of these localities. Here the currency of the country is an unknown medium of exchange, neither silver, gold nor paper money being in circulation anywhere within their precincts. It is needless to add that where the currency of the country does not circulate none of its progressive ideas will penetrate or its plans for human or national welfare prevail.

Crusade Twelve Years Old.

There are some communities where illiterate men have no chance for education unless they go to the penitentiary or join the army, but the illiteracy crusade, which started twelve years ago, is gathering momentum and has now reached most of the states. No provision was made originally in any state school system for the education of adults, and no plan existed prior to 1911 for redeeming illiterates. An individual would now and then teach some illiterate to read and write. Champ Clark used to relate to his fellow congressmen how he taught a man and his two grown daughters after the Civil war. But as a wholesale undertaking the removal of adult illiteracy has waited long. It was generally understood that when one grew up illiterate he was to remain so, no matter how bright his intellect might be or how anxious he was to learn. The school age was fixed at from six to twenty, and no one over that age was supposed to enter school. Most of the states are now making some provision for illiterates either through an organized illiteracy campaign, special schools for adults, home teachers or other methods. True, they are limiting this opportunity to foreign-born illiterates in places, leaving the native-born in illiteracy, and in others are confining the opportunity to those under certain ages.

The barrier of age to educational opportunity must crumble just as the barriers of race, sex, class and religion have given away. In some of the southern states it was once forbidden by law to teach a negro to read and write. The fight for equal educational opportunities for women in the United States was not easily won. As illustrious a personage as Benjamin Franklin was not certain that it was worth while to teach them. He wrote in his autobiography: "A question was somehow or other started between Collins and me as to the propriety of educating the female sex in learning and their ability to study. He was of the opinion that it was improper and I took the contrary side, perhaps a little for dispute's sake."

Many Eager to Learn.

The situation is distinctly hopeful as regards the eagerness of the illiterates for knowledge and their ability to learn. Even those who are said to be the most unapproachable and to care the least for knowledge, the Indian women on the reservations, could be induced to learn and could be taught the rudiments in a few months. There is no letter in the alphabet or word in the English language as difficult to form as the scrolls, whorls and intricate designs they do in bead work and with elk teeth and porcupine quills to adorn the costume of an Indian brave. They are government wards, and an order from "The Great White Father" would put every one of them under instruction.

"The philosopher, the saint, the hero, the wise, the good, the great man very often lies concealed in a plebeian whom proper education might have disinterred and brought to light," said Addison. One wonders how many geniuses might be found among these twenty million if "disinterred and brought to light" and set to serving the nation. If there should be one Booker T. Washington, Edison or Lincoln among them, although it cost $20,000,000 to bring him out, it would be worth the price.—Cora Wilson Stewart, chairman illiteracy commission, National Educational association.

POPE HITS MODERN STYLES

Stringent Rules for Women Who Seek Audience at Vatican.

As a result of the recent sensational incident when 150 women, forming a part of a deputation to the pope, were turned back from the Vatican because their dresses were low at the neck and had short sleeves, the papal major domo has issued a new set of regulations for dress when being received by the pope at the Vatican in Rome, Italy.

Women must wear dresses covering the arms to the wrist and the neck to the chin, say the regulations. The dresses must be made of thick material and not transparent, and be long enough to reach down to the ankles of the wearer. Dresses giving undue prominence to the figure are discouraged.

Gloves must not be worn, and only wedding or engagement rings may adorn the fingers of intending visitors to the Vatican, who are now submitted to three examinations, viz., first at the door, second at St. Damasco courtyard, and if they pass these posts, their invitation card is crossed with a blue mark. The third examination is made in the papal antechamber, where successful candidates receive a red cross on their cards.

Makeup of any description is strictly forbidden. Hair dye is tolerated, provided it is not of the conspicuous peroxide tint.

SERVES 54 YEARS ON JOB

Michigan Man, Engineer, Boasts of Longest Record in U. S.

Few railroad men can boast of a longer service record with one company than Philip B. Sullivan, Escanaba, Mich., engineer on the Peninsular division of the North Western road.

He will have completed fifty-four years of railroading on the 21st of this month.

Mr. Sullivan had one thrilling experience in his fifty-four years of railroading. It was on Sept. 10, 1871, the day after the great Chicago fire. The engine of the passenger train on which he was braking plunged into the Chicago river a few moments after a tug hit the bridge and broke the locks. The rest of the train did not fall.

NOTED SPEAKER

Everett Colby at M. E. Church Here Thursday, November 8.

An active Republican in politics, former member of the party's national committee which drafted the tentational committee and one of a sub-committee platform for the national convention of 1920, Everett Colby, of New York will speak here in the Methodist Episcopal church at the conference on international relations Thursday evening, November 8, as a staunch advocate of full American membership in the League of Nations.

Mr. Colby who is a New York attorney, is chairman of the executive committee of the League of Nations non-Partisan association, an organization whose members, irrespective of party affiliation, believe that the United States should enter the League and assume its full share of responsibility in the work of that body.

HON. EVERETT COLBY.

Three weeks are being given by Mr. Colby to the series of 33 conferences on international relations being held in Ohio during the period which will culminate with Armistice day, under auspices of state and local councils of churches and a group of affiliated bodies. He will speak at 16 of these meetings on the subjects, "World Problems" and "The Duty of the United States Toward Europe." At the meeting here he will be accompanied by Kirby Page, who has just returned from a trip abroad gathering material for a book on "Is War Justifiable?"

DISCOVERS GOLD IN WISCONSIN

Prospector Finds Ore Worth $10 a Ton in Bogus Cave Near Richland Center.

Richland Center, Wis.—Wisconsin is now among the gold-producing states of the Union. Ore, containing $10 worth of gold and an ounce of silver in each ton, has been discovered by W. E. Warren, prospector in Bogus cave on Bogus bluff, a mile and a half from Gotham, Richland county.

Assays have been returned to Mr. Warren with the ore he had tested, which will convince the most dubious. The ore was exhibited at the Richland county fair.

"I have known that there was gold there for a long time," said Mr. Warren. "I have received assays from other samples tested which proved them to contain between $1 and $8 worth of gold and a little silver."

Mr. Warren believes that this discovery will pay him to install machinery to remove the ore from the ground.

Cave Famous Many Years.

"Let colliers to the top is a high percentage for low grade ore," he continued. "And then, too, the deeper I dig the better it gets."

Bogus cave has been famous for many years. Its history is a continuous story of mystery and adventure.

Between 1872 and 1876 it was connected with the operations of a daring gang of counterfeiters. Signals have been seen flashing from Bogus bluff, which were answered as far away as Blue Mound, more than 25 miles.

"I don't believe the counterfeiters ever made their money here," said Mr. Warren. "The rooms are too dark and too small. They may have used it for a storing place, however."

Before the days of the counterfeiters Bogus cave was a refuge for Indians. Many Indian relics have been unearthed by Mr. Warren in his excavations in the cave.

"In one room I found a white dome-like structure, which must have been used at one time for an altar," said Warren.

Yellow Stone Cave It Name.

The name Bogus bluff did not come from the counterfeit money believed to have been made there, Mr. Warren tells. In 1850 his father began digging around Bogus for gold, and as his efforts were rewarded with only a yellow stone which looked like gold, but was valueless, the neighbors said he was digging "bogus" gold.

Mr. Warren's father was forced to give up his work because of his lack of money. He told his son that some day he must return and continue the enterprise. W. E. Warren was born in 1853, but it was not until three years ago that he could save enough money to return from the West.

The land around Bogus cave is owned by Ward Lamberson, Richland Center. The miners have promised to give Mr. Lamberson one-fifth of whatever they find.

Mr. Warren's father furnished him with a detailed map of the cave which had been given him by an Indian of the Chippewa tribe. It is rather generally believed in Richland county that Mr. Warren is really digging for a buried treasure.

Auto Held Responsible for Lop-Footed Persons

New York.—Observe, as you walk along the streets, the position of the feet of pedestrians. You will be surprised to see that in numerous instances while the left foot is turned outward the right travels in a straight line and often actually "toes in."

The right foot of the Manhattanite seems literally to be following in the footsteps of the moccasin-clad aborigines, from whom his ancestors wrested possession of the soil. They were "pigeon toed." This phenomenon, apparent in all large cities, is of comparatively recent appearance and has hitherto been unnoticed even by physiologists. But of late the tendency to "toe in" with the right foot has become so marked that search has been made for the cause.

This cause has been found to be the automobile. The motorcar accelerator is turning the walking right foot of booted modern man inward to the line of his barefoot pre-automobile ancestors.

Find $5,680 in Waste Paper.

New York.—A man emptying waste paper on the pier at Old Orchard, Me., found a long, black pocketbook containing $5,680 in checks, cash and notes, and bearing the name Edgar E. Rhodes. Mr. Rhodes explained that he missed the pocketbook the day before. It is supposed that he laid it on a shelf in his studio and it was brushed into the waste paper basket.

Daughter for Adam and Eve.

London.—Those familiar with the story of the Garden of Eden—and that's everyone—pricked up their ears figuratively, when it was announced that a daughter had been born to Eve, wife of A. D. Adam, at 28 Myddleton square. It wasn't announced whether the child will bear a biblical name.

"Old Curiosity Shop" Is Sold.

London.—The "Old Curiosity Shop" in Lincoln's Inn fields, familiar to all lovers of Dickens, has been sold for $11,250. The purchaser, J. A. Phillips, said he bought the shop to preserve it as a curiosity.

BUDGET SYSTEM IS UPHELD

Congressional Leaders Rally to Its Defense.

MOVE SEEN TO DESTROY IT

National Interest, Says One Leader, Dictates That "This Business-Like and Efficient Instrument in Government Finance Be Maintained." "Only Way to Run the Government," Says Another.

Washington, Oct. 29.—Congressional leaders who had a hand in establishing the budget system and putting it into operation continue to rally to its defense against the campaign to destroy it.

Representative William S. Vare of Pennsylvania, second ranking member of the house appropriations committee, said:

"Any effort to attack the present national budget would be quickly defeated in congress. I am surprised to hear that such a movement is on foot. National interest dictates this business-like and efficient instrument in government finance be maintained. If taxes are to be lowered, the budget is necessary, because it is the only way that appropriations may be effectively regulated and kept within the national income. The resultant economy and efficiency and the end of extravagance entailed in adoption of the budget justifies further employment of the system. We have the spectacle of European nations living beyond their means before us to particularly recommend the budget."

Former Representative Walter M. Chandler of New York said:

"Abolish the budget system? Do that and you go back to the old days of waste and extravagance in government. Before the budget was established the heads of the various government departments asked and usually received from congress money far beyond the amount actually needed to run their departments. Should the head of a department discover near the end of the fiscal year that he was likely to have some money left over he began devising ways and means of spending the surplus. Under this system there was bound to be extravagance and waste. When the budget was established all this came to an end. This method is both business-like and scientific, and I am heartily opposed to any movement that would abolish it. It is the one sure method of keeping the expenses of the government within its income."

Representative John N. Sandlin of Louisiana stated: "Although I have not made a detailed study of the bureau of budget, I can see no reason for its abolition. It has done the work for which it was organized, and has undoubtedly saved money for the government. Before it is ridiculed it should be given a chance."

Representative Arthur M. Free of California declared: "I am heartily in favor of the budget system. It is the only way to run the government. You have a budget system in business, why not a budget system in government?"

INCOMES SHOW DECREASE

Dropped Nearly $8,000,000,000 Between 1920 and 1921.

Washington, Oct. 29.—American incomes subject to federal taxation dropped nearly $8,000,000,000 between 1920 and 1921, according to compilations completed by the internal revenue bureau. Income taxes paid the national government fell $1,200,000,000 during the same period, the figures reveal.

The decrease of nearly $8,000,000,000 in taxable income was divided almost equally between individuals on the one hand and corporations on the other. Corporate incomes were nearly cut in two from $7,903,000,000 to $4,336,000,000, while individual incomes dropped nearly 20 per cent from $23,700,000,000 to $19,600,000,000. There also was a drop of 600,000 in the number of individuals making income tax returns.

New York led the country with 1,066,637 returns, reporting incomes of $3,617,754,104 and taxes of $210,768,379. Pennsylvania was second, followed in order by Illinois, Massachusetts and California. Ohio, the only other state to report net incomes above a billion dollars, had 367,095 returns, $1,060,079,926 income and $33,574,094 tax.

VISITS BATTLEFIELDS

David Lloyd George Spends Profitable Day in Virginia.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 29.—David Lloyd George visited Confederate battlefields yesterday while on his way to this city.

Accompanied by Admiral Grayson, a native Virginian, he went first to the Salem church battlefield, then through Chancellorsville to the Stonewall Jackson monument, which he inspected with great interest. The drive to the Wilderness and Grant's headquarters followed. Lloyd George also learned much of the romantic history of Fredericksburg. He saw the old home of Mary Washington, mother of George Washington, and also Meditation rock, her favorite retreat for meditation and prayer.

Fredericksburg furnished seven presidents of the United States, namely, Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Harrison, Tyler and Taylor. Lloyd George was told that within a radius of 15 miles of Fredericksburg more battles were fought and more officers and privates were killed and wounded than in any similar territory in the United States. He also was told by a Confederate veteran that the world war never developed any men the equals of Generals Jackson and Lee.

Four persons were summoned by police at Los Angeles for questioning in connection with the death of Mrs. Ethel Williams, 25, cabaret singer, who was found murdered in her flat.

REACHES LIMIT OF CONCESSIONS

Poincare Says There Will Be No Reduction in Reparations.

REPLIES TO BALDWIN OFFER

French Premier Also Declares There Will Be No Evacuation of the Ruhr and That He Has Not Agreed to the Principle of an International Conference, but Has Given His Assent to an Inquiry by Experts.

Paris, Oct. 29.—No reduction in the reparations bill; no concessions to Germany; no evacuation of the Ruhr—these were the principal points in Premier Poincare's reply to Premier Baldwin in a speech at Samigny.

"We have reached the limit of our concessions," said the French premier. "We will not go an inch further, and we will not surrender a sou of the amount due us."

Then the premier explained why he had given his assent to a commission of experts to go over the reparations question under the plan outlined by Secretary of State Hughes. He said: "This is a commission authorized under the treaty of Versailles, but it is expressly understood that it can not reduce Germany's bills. It can only recommend the advisability of temporarily reducing the annual payments."

The premier stated that in assenting to the conference of experts he had not agreed to the principle of an international conference, "which will not be held."

It is believed here that Poincare is determined to play the present strong position of France for all that it is worth, expecting that eventually England and the United States will be obliged by economic laws to accept his conditions before there can be any reduction in reparations or evacuation of the Ruhr, which will involve the cancellation of interallied debts.

AMERICAN INDIAN'S ANCESTOR FOUND

Two Skulls Link Red Men With Submen of Europe.

Los Angeles, Oct. 29.—The ancestor of the American Indian has been discovered.

Two pre-historic skulls, unearthed at Santa Barbara last week by an expedition of the Smithsonian institution, have upset all previous theories of the development of human life on the North American continent and have set the scientific world by the ears.

They are considered an archaeological "find" of the highest significance and are said to supply the long sought "missing link" between the American Indian and the primitive races that roamed the plains of Europe when the world was young.

John P. Harrington, Smithsonian archaeologist and head of the expedition that unearthed the skulls, is extremely conservative in discussing his momentous "find." But even the scientist's caution does not prohibit his pointing out certain characteristics of the skulls that place them definitely in the Paleolithic age.

"I am not prepared," said Mr. Harrington, "at this time to fix the age of the skulls. They are at least 5,000 years old, and it is probable they are of much greater antiquity. But their shape and contour indicate that they antedate the Neanderthal man. It is certain they are not the skulls of American Indians. Nor did they belong to apes. They lie somewhere between the two, and provide the link for which scientists have long been searching which will draw the curtain which has shrouded the progenitor of the American Indian. These skulls will link him with the 'submen' of the European continent. The Santa Barbara skull is that of a 'subman.'"

To Fight Against Privations.

Berlin, Oct. 29.—Neighborhood guilds, which will pool the resources of whole neighborhoods and stretch them to cover the necessities of all, are the latest project announced by the newly-founded league of all women's organizations in Berlin, to fight against the growing privation.

DOINGS IN OHIO

To Test Prohibition Law.

Columbus, Oct. 29.—The state prohibition enforcement law, under which liquor law violators may be sent to the penitentiary for a third conviction, is to be tested in the supreme court. The conviction is that of August Sissea of Newark, recently convicted of unlawful possession of intoxicants and given a penitentiary sentence on the grounds that he had been twice before convicted. His counsel, filing a motion for leave to file a petition in error, raised the point that first and second offenses must be affirmatively proved. It is also charged that the Anti-Saloon league counsel, prosecuting the case, acted improperly in adducing testimony with respect to an alleged and subsequent offense, prejudicing the jury thereby.

Wants State Roads Improved.

Columbus, Oct. 29.—The Ohio Good Roads Federation will ask the next legislature to provide for the improvement of 1,000 miles of state road each year for five years. It will show the assembly, by engineering data and other information, just what such a program will cost, and ask that the money be made available. Another thing that the federation will recommend is that some sort of a cost accounting system be applied to road building and road maintenance in the state.

Bomber Breaks Lifting Record.

Dayton, O., Oct. 29.—Carrying the greatest load an airplane has ever lifted from the ground, the Baring bomber, the world's largest flying machine, established an international weight carrying attitude and endurance record at Wilber Wright field. Nineteen bombs, weighing 6,992 pounds, were carried in the ship's hold. The six-motored craft remained in the air one hour, 19 minutes and 11 seconds, during which time an altitude of 5,000 feet was reached.

Ohio State Day Named.

Columbus, Oct. 29.—From coast to coast and in foreign lands alumni and former students of Ohio State university will rally Friday, Dec. 7, for the annual observance of "Ohio State Day." The date has just been fixed by proclamation of J. B. Nordholt, Toledo, president of the Ohio State university association, official organization of alumni and former students.

Bandits Get $7,500.

Columbus, Oct. 29.—Three youthful bandits, who held up the central office force of the Piggly-Wiggly grocery chain here, successfully eluded police with their loot of $7,512. The money represented the day's receipts of the company's stores.

Leviathan's New Record.

London, Oct. 29.—The Leviathan was given a wonderful send-off after setting a new world's record for a round trip for a vessel of her size. Reaching Southampton Saturday morning at 9:50, the Leviathan occupied 26 hours preparing for her westward passage. In that time she discharged at Southampton docks 220 passengers, 682 baggage trunks, 342 tons of cargo, 4,370 mail bags, and pumped out 936 tons of oil water. She loaded 4,493 tons of oil, 32,011 tons of water, 83 tons of stores, 4,082 pieces of baggage, 43,000 pieces of linen and took aboard 2,000 passengers.

GERMANY FACES FATEFUL WEEK

Life of the Republic in Its Present Form at Stake.

UNITY OF REICH MENACED

Dictator Stresemann Sends Ultimatum to Radical Government of Saxony to Get Out—Also "Requests" Bavaria to Get Back Into Constitutional Lineup With the Reich—Socialists to Quit Berlin Cabinet.

Berlin, Oct. 29.—Germany is facing what is to be perhaps the most fateful week since the armistice that ended the world war.

The unity of the reich is at stake and the events of the next few days are expected, in political circles, to go a long way toward determining the very life of the republic in its present form.

Pressed by the nationalist elements on one hand and crowded by the Socialists in his own cabinet on the other, Chancellor Stresemann is beginning to manifest more and more a desire to become dictator in fact as well as in name.

With his ultimatum to the radical social-communist government of "Red Saxony" to "get out and be quick about it," and in sharp contrast to his polite "request" to Bavaria to get back into constitutional lineup with the reich, Stresemann is staking his all on "to be or not to be" dictator, and is ready to play his trump card—the reichswehr—against the radical Saxon government.

The Saxon government, with Premier Zeigner presiding, convened in special session. Premier Zeigner said: "I can not say what decision may be arrived at by the Saxon government, but I can tell you my own personal decision, and that is for the rejection of the Berlin ultimatum."

Later the Saxon government telephoned to Berlin: "There is no political reason for complying to the demand of the Berlin government. The proper authority in the matter is the Saxon diet and as long as it doesn't act, the government will remain. The government, however, will submit the matter to the diet and ask a vote of confidence."

The diet does not meet until Tuesday. Whether the Berlin government will carry out its threatened measures depends largely on the report of Herr Soliman, Socialist minister of the interior of the Berlin government, who went to Dresden in an effort to effect mediation.

Meanwhile the Socialist labor unions in Germany, fearing the coming of dictatorship, are preparing to meet the emergency by considering the calling of a general strike.

There was much talk of lowering Berlin's ultimatum with a general strike in Saxony and possibly in all the middle and north of Germany. In Munich a special council of the ministers has been called to determine Bavaria's attitude on Stresemann's request to return the reichswehr to the constitutional authority of Berlin. It was asserted at Munich, however, that there was little prospect of Bavaria acceding to the demands of Berlin.

In parliamentary circles it is expected that the Socialists will be out of Stresemann's cabinet by the end of the coming week. That would clear the way for a "dictatorship of the right."

FIVE MEN DROWNED

United States Submarine Sunk in Collision With a Steamer.

Washington, Oct. 29.—Five enlisted men met their deaths when the United States submarine O-5 was sunk in collision with the steamer Abangarez in Limon bay.

An official report of the disaster was received at the navy department from the commandant of the submarine base at Coco Solo, Panama canal zone. The commandant's message follows:

"U. S. S. O-5 sunk in collision with steamer Abangarez at 6:24 a. m. this date, off Buoy 3, Limon bay. Following named men unaccounted for: Lawrence T. Brown, Tyngsboro, Mass., chief electrician's mate; Clyde E. Hughes, Manito, Ill., motor machinist's mate; Henry Breault, Grande Isle, Vt., torpedo man, second class; Thomas T. Metzler, 1221 South Twenty-sixth street, Philadelphia, Pa., freeman; Fred C. Smith, Cristobal, Canal Zone, mess attendant."

Grain exports from the United States last week amounted to 3,014,000 bushels, compared with 3,535,000 bushels the week previous.

SUPER-GOVERNMENT SEEN

Brookhart Alleges Financial Graft and Lobbying at Capital.

New Orleans, Oct. 29.—"America is under a super government today. It's the super government of high finance and of the railroads that are the pawns in the game of high finance. And the high temple of its priests and acolytes is the temple that has just been built in Washington by the United States chamber of commerce."

Senator Smith W. Brookhart, Republican of Iowa, who is here attending the New Orleans hearing of the senatorial committee on the 9-foot channel from lakes to gulf, made this statement.

"Conditions of financial graft and lobbying and political corruption are as bad at Washington today as they were in Mark Hanna's palmist days, if they're not worse," he continued.

"They're more dangerous to American ideals of republican government than Hanna's days were, because the lobbyist and the leaders of the super government are not so crude as they were in the old days. If there was ever a time when the farmers and the workers of America to get together for a cleanup of existing conditions, now is the time."

According to Mr. Brookhart, Senator LaFollette is the "outstanding" Republican today, "but that doesn't mean he'll be nominated," Brookhart added. Brookhart accused the railroads, with three or four exceptions, of being hostile to the 9-foot channel project.

PUTS IT UP TO MELLON

Pinchot Would Have Government's Aid in Enforcing Dry Laws.

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 29.—Governor Pinchot in a letter to Secretary of Treasury Andrew S. Mellon put up to the federal government the question of strict enforcement of prohibition laws in Pennsylvania. In effect, he said he had gone as far as his power permits, but that the federal government has not given him the same co-operation he has given Washington. Two suggestions are made to the secretary by the governor. One of these is that state police be permitted access to all places holding federal liquor permits, and that permits be revoked, after hearing, if it is shown violation of law occurred. The governor quotes specific cases of violation.

Boasts of Former Beauty.

When you are old and peacefully settled behind your years it is a pardonable vanity to boast of how beautiful you were as a girl. The homeliest woman will do that. She may have a parchment complexion, a nose drawn up at the corners and spread like a bulbous knob at the end, thin lips that look like a puckered stitching, a mere wisp of hair, eyebrows so sketchy that they show like rubbed-out lines above her faded eyes; still, she will toss her palsied old head, give you a proud look and inform you that she was a famous beauty in her youth. She may, indeed, be telling the truth, because age does make astonishing changes in the human countenance. Nature seems to lose interest in you, once you have fulfilled your purpose. But my belief is that we only remember how beautiful we felt when we were young, whether we were or not.—Saturday Evening Post.

SITS IN JUDGMENT

By DOROTHY HANDLEY

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"I HAVE my opinion of a man who will go out evenings and leave his wife alone—" The rattly clang of a passing trolley car in the noisy city street shut off all further sounds.

When it had passed, John Farwell, divesting himself of his coat in the boarding-house hall, heard another girlish voice take up the refrain.

"And he should be contented to stay quietly at home with his wife after his day of seeing and meeting people."

"Yes, it's only fair. I should certainly not stand it. Why, Pauline, I'll bet I could divorce a man for that." To John, smoothing his hair before the glass of the golden oak hatrack, this pronouncement was little short of calamitous, in view of the fact that the owner of the last voice was his fiancée. He had never dreamed that his Molly would be that kind of wife.

Pauline, Molly's chum, was in the room the greater part of the evening, and during the rest of the time Molly's charms drove all other thoughts from his mind.

He thought of it on the way home. "Jove!" he said; "I must straighten that matter out. I can't give up my club and good times with the boys. It's only once a week, and it seems to me—" And so his thoughts ran on, with about fifty duplications, during the time which elapsed before he next saw Molly.

But nothing was said on the subject at his next visit, when John's mind alternated between "speak of it now" and "guess I'll wait a few minutes."

By this time it must be quite clear to the reader that John was a youth who was mortally afraid of "starting anything," and perhaps would be willing to put up with anything rather than hurt one he loved. A fine trait, this, but, like most virtues, it can be carried to extremes. John was in a fair way to carrying it to an extreme.

During the interval before his next visit he whipped himself up to the attack, and kept himself so for a few hours. Then the reaction would set in and he would tell himself he was a fool to upset the smoothness of their relations for a thing like that.

"If Molly feels like that about it, I'm not the one to make her miserable. She's sure one dandy little girl, and any man should be glad to be able to spend every minute with her that he could."

Finally the verdict passed by himself on himself was that he must give up his club and waive all opportunities and invitations to "go out with the boys."

"They'll laugh at me for an idiot, but none of them've got girls like Molly," he told himself.

And so they were married. Both were wearied of boarding-house life, and for a while the cozy little flat presided over by a jolly little wife filled John's needs. The evenings were taken up with trips to the theater, cards with their friends, either at the homes of friends or in their flat alone.

When John signified his intention of resigning from his club, the boys made gleeful fun of him.

"What's the matter—henpecked?" they wanted to know.

"Wait till you get a little wife like mine," was his answer.

As time passed and news was brought to him of the good times the boys were having, John's heart began to ache a little. For, perhaps due to an instinctive delicacy and tact in his relations with his fellow men, John was a great favorite with the boys, and had thoroughly enjoyed his little club.

There came to be hours when he told himself what a fool he had been not to straighten the thing out with Molly at the beginning—if she began leading him around by the nose like this, even though unaware that she was doing so, how would it end? He would be henpecked.

Thinking these thoughts one evening, Molly sitting by his side, the picture of domesticity, he fumbled restlessly with the newspaper. Suddenly Molly looked up from her darning and their eyes met. She laid down her work; a woman's intuition was at work.

"What is it, dear?" she asked, softly.

Something in her voice loosed the bonds.

"Oh, Molly, it's the club—I miss it so."

"The club? What club?"

"Why, don't you remember the club I used to belong to? I resigned without telling you—you never seemed to notice, anyway."

"Why, so you did belong—well, for goodness' sake, what did you resign for?" with great indignation.

"What for? Why, Molly, I heard you tell Pauline you never would stand a man's being out evenings and leaving you alone. I hated to give up the club like sin, but I hated worse to hurt you."

Molly sprang up and nearly strangled him on the spot.

"Why, bless your old heart," she cried. "I can remember the discussion Pauline and I had—but that wasn't it at all—you've got me altogether wrong. I guess you just didn't hear all I said."

John's eyes popped open.

"That's exactly what you said about it—you even said you would divorce a husband—"

"Who went out evenings and left a wife alone who was an invalid," finished Molly, triumphantly. "Do I look like an invalid, silly?"

FOSSIL CHANGES IDEAS OF BOTANICAL HISTORY

Search Rewarded by Important Geological Find.

Chicago.—Discovery of the stem of a plant similar to that of a corn stalk in a lump of limestone found imbedded in a coal seam in Illinois has changed hitherto accepted ideas of plant evolution and pushed the mystery of the origin of flowering plants millions of years further back into the geological past. Prof. A. C. Noe, paleobotanist for the University of Chicago, unearthed the revolutionary evidence after a systematic search.

The strata from which he obtained the limestone lump, or "coal ball," was identified as belonging to the carboniferous, or great coal, age of the Paleozoic era, the next to the oldest of the four great geological time divisions which contain the fossil record of the past life on the earth. He classified the fossil stem as that of an angiosperm, or a flowering plant which had its seed inclosed in a seed container, as are the seeds of our apple, rose and oak.

No flowering plants of this sort have heretofore been proved to have grown so far back as this period of ancient geological times. The specimens previously reported of land plants with such highly organized structure have been found in parts of the earth's crust formed during the Mesozoic era, or geological middle ages, millions of years nearer to the present time. Botanists have assumed from such evidence that the flowering plants had just begun to appear about the latter part of the age when the plants that form our coal flourished. They have expected to find the more primitive flowering plants at this earlier time. Professor Noe's discovery in the coal measures of a plant representing what had been taken to be a far advanced stage in plant evolution indicates that land plants must have gone through an enormously long period of development before the earliest period recorded in the fossil rocks.

MISS LI BREAKS ANCIENT TRADITION OF CHINESE

Breaking a tradition of ancient China by traveling without an entourage, Miss Grace Li, demure daughter of Li Yuan-Hung, president of the Chinese republic, arrived at Wellesley, Mass., accompanied only by Miss Harriet Chou, and rented a hall bedroom in a small boarding house on a side street. The girls entered Wellesley to take a two year course in political economy. Miss Li said she believed in woman suffrage and that Chinese girls are no longer betrothed in infancy. "We are not bossed nowadays," she added. She is unmarried, she said, because she had never seen a man she wanted to marry.

California's Governor Seeks County Supervisor

Sacramento, Cal.—The worm has turned and the job really seeks the man. Gov. Friend W. Richardson is in the unusual position of having a political plum which apparently nobody wants. It is in Alpine county, where the reluctance of the inhabitants to hold office has caused the governor to have posted in the courthouse at Markleeville a notice calling for applicants for appointment as supervisor.

Supervisor George H. Luhrs of Alpine county created the vacancy by resigning. Patiently the governor waited for the army of deserving aspirants. None came. When he decided to advertise, he found there was no newspaper published in the county.

Ex-German Kaiser Now Seeks Greater Seclusion

Doorn.—Instead of time softening the seclusion of the former German emperor, he is about to retire even more completely from the gaze of the sightseer, for he has ordered the erection of a barricade to prevent his residence from being overlooked from the highroad. The framework for the new screen, which is eight feet high, will successfully prevent anyone from getting even a fleeting glimpse of the fretful monarch as he walks in his garden.

The recent publicity given to a bonfire celebration in the grounds of Doorn house is said to have been the motive for the greater privacy.

Sensible Mr. Dubwaite.
"Did you ever come in unexpectedly and find your office boy reclining in your easy chair, with his feet propped up on your desk?" "Oh yes," replied Mr. Dubwaite. "And what did you do?" "I registered a mental vow that I would quit seeing him a bad example."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

EGG CROP

This is Time of the Year for Hens and Bullets to Work Overtime.

During the next few weeks the price of eggs will be the highest of the year. Shippers from Pickaway county who are sending select white eggs to Pittsburgh and New York markets are receiving from fifty-five to sixty-five cents per dozen for the eggs at those markets. The local price is steadily advancing and poultrymen at this season of the year can well afford to do everything in their power to make the hens and pullets lay.

This is a good time of the year to see that the well developed pullets are housed and are made to work about fourteen hours a day. This can be done by the use of lights in the hen house, either early in the morning or immediately following sun down. Records in the Farm Bureau office show that poultrymen using lights have gotten an increase of twenty-five to fifty per cent in egg production during the season of high prices.

The flock of well developed pullets properly fed and working fourteen hours a day may be expected to lay one dozen eggs each during the month of November. However, the average flock of hens during the month of November will lay from three to five eggs each. The successful poultryman must make most of his money during the period of high prices; all this can only be done thru the best known practices of poultry husbandry.

Columbus, Oct. 29.—For the past two years and a half there has been a steady increase in resources and deposits of state banks, according to a statement issued today by H. E. Scott, superintendent of banks of Ohio, showing the resources and the deposits of these institutions now to be the highest ever recorded. Resources of these banks, 750 in number, as shown by the call of Sept. 14, 1923, just compiled, total $1,721,549,741, an increase of $32,868,731 since the preceding call of June 30, and an increase of $173,153,031 since the call of Sept. 15, 1922. Total deposits on Sept. 14, 1923, were $1,485,074,033, an increase of $28,229,802 since June 30, and an increase of $157,627,142 since Sept. 15, 1922.

"This splendid record demonstrates that the banking institutions of the state are progressive and well managed, and that the practice of thrift has taken a firm, extensive hold upon its people," declared Superintendent Scott. The statement asserts general financial, trade and industrial conditions are excellent, with prospects for the future exceedingly reassuring.

Remarkable Sleep-Walking.

A boy told his parents one morning that the previous night he had dreamed he got out of bed and climbed to the summit of an enormous rock, where he discovered an eagle's nest which he brought away with him and placed beneath his bed. It was discovered later that these events had actually taken place. The preciple he had ascended was of a nature that baffled even the most experienced mountaineers, and the nest was discovered beneath his bed, just as he had stated.—Exchange.

LEGION AN AID TO FARMERS

Employment Bureau Operated in South Dakota Supplied Men During Harvest Season.

An American Legion employment bureau, operated in South Dakota during the harvest season, is regarded as having been one of the most effective checks in the spread of "L. W. W."ism in the North and West. Through the services of the Legion's bureau hundreds of men known to be of non-radical tendencies were sent to the farmers of the Dakotas to obtain work, the radical type staying away from the Legion's employment agents.

The bureau was instituted by the Sidney E. Smith post of the Legion at Aberdeen, S. D. Service was rendered for a period of eight weeks, during which time the Legion placed 750 men of 1,100 registering, without cost. In some instances these men were sent 200 miles from the agency to a farmer who had turned to the Legion to obtain reliable help in harvesting his big crops.

But service did not stop with jobs alone. Many of the men arrived at the Legion tents, "broke," hungry and dirty. The Legion men provided 800 men with meals, gave lodging to 400 men, and arranged for a large number to receive free shower baths. Odd jobs were found for a large number to fill in until farm employment would be obtained.

Local police regarded a slip from the American Legion employment bureau as sufficient evidence that the man was all right, but those who did not have the Legion's cards were usually told to move on. The project was given endorsement of federal, state and municipal authorities.

THOUSANDS IN BIG CONTEST

Many School Children Trying for American Legion's Americanism Prize Essay Cash.

Four hundred thousand American school children are participating in the American Legion's national essay contest on "Why America Should Prohibit Immigration for Five Years," according to a recent announcement of the Legion's national Americanism commission. Prizes amounting to $1,500, and medals for winning contestants of each state are offered.

The contest is open to all boys and girls between the ages of twelve and eighteen years; only one essay may be submitted by a contestant, and essays must be limited to 500 words each. Prize winners must use the money for scholarships in colleges of their own selection. First prize is $750, second $500, and third, $250. In addition to the cash prizes the best paper in each state will be awarded a silver medal, the second best paper a bronze medal, and the third a certificate of merit from the national office of the Legion.

The contest will be held through the counties and states. The three best essays in the states will be forwarded to the office of the national Americanism commission of the Legion, where they will be judged for national honors.

"To promote interest in patriotism among the younger generation and to foster education," is the announced purpose of the contest.

LEGION PLANS TO AID POLES

Organization Will Endeavor to Have Naturalization Requirements Amended in Their Favor.

The assistance of the American Legion has been asked for a group of American-born men who seek easing of naturalization laws because of war service in the Polish army.

"Haller's Army," a contingent of American Poles, fought at the side of allied troops all through the war. Their service caused them to lose rights as American citizens, and in order to obtain citizenship they must pass through the same formalities as would an alien seeking naturalization. The veterans base their plea for the Legion's aid on the fact that they served with allied troops and should be entitled to naturalization by display of an honorable discharge and testimony of witnesses to their service. Others in this army were citizens of Poland, then subjugated by the enemy, and were classed as enemy aliens, although they fought with the allies. Efforts will be made to reduce naturalization requirements for these men, as well as those who were previously citizens of the United States.

To Aid in Conserving Forests.

The American Legion will assist in the conservation of the giant redwood forests of California from inroads by lumbermen and destruction by fire. Recent action by the organization provides for co-operation with other agencies seeking to save the forest monarchs. If any preserve or park is created, it has been suggested to the Legion that it be named in honor of Joyce Kilmer, poet-soldier of the A. E. F., who died in France.

SERIOUS CHARGE

Gray, who formerly was employed by Carroll was arrested while driving a team in Chillicothe.

The crime is alleged to have taken place when Carroll and his wife had gone to Chillicothe leaving Gray to take care of the other daughter, Margery and a boy about 10 years old. Constable Wash Darling brought Gray to this city Saturday and placed him in the county jail.

The accused had a hearing before Justice E. C. Friece Monday and was bound over to the grand jury in the sum of $1000. In default of bail he was remanded to jail.

Not a "Cheap Duchess."

Everyone told stories about Queen Victoria. The one I liked best was of her correction of a draft letter to say that the duchess of Connaught was to join the queen's train. The queen wrote in pencil on the draft, "You should always describe the duchess as 'her royal highness,' to show that she is not a common duchess."—From "The First World War," by Colonel Repington.

AMUSEMENTS

A photoplay based on the play which a few years ago was one of the hits of Broadway is "Success" scheduled for presentation on Monday at the Met theater with Brandon Tynan the stage star in the role which he originally created in the spoken story and the excellence of the cast play. The dramatic interest in the which interprets the various roles should make the presentation a distinct hit.

"Success" is a story of the theater, but unlike many of the type, this is said to have been written by persons familiar with the intimate details of life behind the footlights. Its authors have managed to capture the spirit and atmosphere of the playhouse, and the characters which they have introduced are all faithful, actual types.

In addition to Mr. Tynan, the cast includes the delightful screen actress, Mary Astor, as the talented daughter; Naomi Childers as the mother; and Dore Davidson, Lionel Adams, Stanley Uggles, Robert Lee Keeling, Billy Quirk and others. The photoplay is presented by Murray W. Garsson, and released by Metro Pictures Corporation. It is a Ralph Ince production, written and adapted by Adeline Leltzsch and Theodore A. Liebler Jr. George V. Hobart wrote the titles.

U.S. LEADS WORLD IN AERONAUTICS

Report by Army Air Service Says Americans Excel in Speed Records, Etc.

Washington.—The army air service in a report just issued here claims that the United States, which was so backward in aeronautics in the perilous World War days, has taken the lead over the rest of the world within the last year in development of the airplane motor and other phases of aircraft construction.

The air service declares that this superiority is demonstrated primarily by the fact that Americans have taken practically all the world's airplane records during the last ten months.

Credit for improvements along technical lines which have made possible this record is given to the air service engineering division at McCook field, Dayton, O., the bureau of standards and the national advisory committee for aeronautics.

Vast Improvement Made.

The long list of records attained by army pilots have been achieved, the report states, because of the greatly increased efficiency of the new planes and engines. This increased efficiency, it is claimed, is the result of the combined efforts of private manufacturers and the engineering division in experimentation and research work.

In airplane design great progress has been made along the line of producing more efficient wings as well as greater structural strength. The study of the substitution of various metals and alloys for former construction materials has been exhaustive, with the result that a better grade of durability is being produced in America now than in any other country of the world.

Liberty Motor Triumph.

To the improvement of the war-time Liberty engine is attributed the success of the transcontinental flight. Such a performance reflects to the credit of the engine with which the airplane was equipped, because a more severe and gruelling test hardly could be imposed.

In the Pulitzer trophy race, the report says, there again was evidenced improvement in airplane engine design when the tremendous horsepower of the engine is compared with the fragile craft which it was required to drive through the air at nearly 250 miles an hour.

Keeping abreast with the world's efforts to develop a flying machine that could ascend and descend vertically the army air service, the report points out, produced during the year the De Havilland helicopter. This machine, built entirely within the service, is among the first successful machines of its type.

New Invention Will Steady Guns on Ships

Chatham, England.—Important experiments are being made here with a telescopic instrument designed to abolish the rolling of warships. The apparatus has been fitted to a ship in the Chatham dockyard.

Thorough tests are to be made at sea. It is generally agreed that if the invention proves a success it will have almost revolutionary effect on naval warfare, because one of the greatest difficulties which the naval gun has to encounter at present is the continual rolling of the ship.

By the introduction of large bilge keels and other improvements in design, naval architects have been able to reduce the rolling very considerably during the last few years, but many difficulties still present themselves. The modern battleship is so enormously heavy that, once she starts rolling, a long time elapses before she recovers her balance.

Heirs to Sue for Lots Valued at $75,000,000

Lexington, Ky.—Final arrangements for filing suit against present occupants of property in the heart of New York valued at more than $75,000,000, will be made by heirs of Robert Edwards at a meeting to be held here, it was decided by more than 100 heirs who gathered in a hotel here. It is claimed Robert Edwards owned 77 acres of land in what is now in the ward of Manhattan borough, but that he died intestate during the Revolutionary war after leasing the property for 99 years. When the lease expired the property was sold. The Edwards heirs scattered about Kentucky and Ohio, have been investigating the situation for two or three years.

Boy Makes $2,500 on $24 Investment

Chicago.—How an office boy invested $24 and made a profit of 10,000 per cent was related by post office officials here. A man tried to sell a Chicago business man a block of air-mail stamps, on which an airplane was printed inverted by mistake. But the man refused. The office boy, hearing of the offer, bought the stamps for $24. Recently he sold them for $2,500 to Col. E. R. Green, son of Mrs. Hetty Green.

SUDDEN DEATH

Lifeless Body of Peter F. Cook Found by His Mother.

Peter Frederick Cook died suddenly at his home on Pleasant street this morning at six o'clock. The deceased returned home Sunday evening between eight and nine o'clock but instead of entering the house went to the rear and sat down in a swing on a porch. He was found by his mother this morning still sitting in the swing but had been dead some time as rigor mortis had set in.

The deceased was born in this city December 17, 1868, and was the son of George and Mary Scherr Cook. His mother and one sister, Miss Kate Cook of Kingston, survive.

The deceased was a member of Philos lodge, Knights of Pythias.

The funeral services will be held Wednesday morning at his home on Pleasant street at ten o'clock. Rev. Floyd E. Loge will officiate. Interment in the Kingston cemetery.

The coronor, Dr. O. H. Dunton, viewed the remains, which were later removed to the undertaking establishment of Mader & Ebert where they will be prepared for burial and probably a post mortem will be held to ascertain the cause of the man's death.

FARM BUREAU

Makes Recommendations on Proposals to be Voted on November 6.

At a joint meeting of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation and the Ohio State Grange held in Columbus October 9, they considered the constitutional amendments and legislative proposals to be voted on at the coming election, November 6, and took action as follows: Constitutional amendment on Workmen's Compensation, the recommendation is to vote "yes."

On elective franchise to strike out the words "white, male," no recommendation is made.

On the proposed amendment which deals with the publication of notice of proposed laws or constitutional amendments, together with arguments for and against in newspapers the recommendation is to vote "yes."

No recommendation is made on the Taft taxation measure, neither is any recommendation made on the Albaugh Assessors' law.

On the old age pension law the recommendation is to vote "no."

McADOO ON DRY LAWS

Comes Out Strongly For Enforcement of Prohibition.

New York, Oct. 29.—William Gibbs McAdoo, who is known to be actively organizing his forces with a view to securing the Democratic nomination for president, came out for prohibition enforcement. His emphatic words on the prohibition question followed those of Henry Ford, who said he would support President Coolidge in the next campaign if the president would enforce the prohibition laws.

While McAdoo did not say he would use the military and naval forces to enforce the law, as Mr. Ford did, McAdoo did say he would like to see every resource of the government used to the utmost to wipe out the disgrace of prohibition violations. He intimated that the efforts so far made on the part of the government showed inefficiency. "It is the duty of the states to see that the prohibition law is enforced just as much as it is the duty of the federal government to do so," he said.

Donahy Denies Story.

Columbus, Oct. 29.—Governor Donahy, on his return from the east, flouted the statement attributed to him to the effect that he would support President Coolidge in the 1924 campaign, if Governor Al Smith of New York is the Democratic nominee. "I made no such statement," said the governor. "It simply is another case of somebody trying to get me in bad with the people of Ohio, but depend on it Vic Donahy is capable of taking care of himself."

Problem in Mathematics.

Two men resolved to take a barrel of cider to a race meeting and there make some money by selling it. In order to be quite sure that they should make money they agreed that if they drank any on the way they should pay for it.

Having no cart, they resolved to roll the barrel to the course, and as it was a hot day they very soon became tired and thirsty.

First Bill had a drink and handed his twopence to Tom, and then Tom had one and paid Bill—and so on.

When they finally reached their destination they found that the barrel was empty. Then came the sharing of the proceeds.

The cider was gone, but where was the money? They could account for twopence, but, alas, where was the rest?

COLOR IN HOMES

Too Much White in Rooms Causes Nervousness.

Writer Tells of Experiment He Made in Friend's Home and the Result.

Are homes too "white"? I ask the question, and give the reply—a most emphatic "Yes!" says a writer.

A few weeks ago I was invited to stay for a few days with a friend. My mission—I am credited with being of the "happy-and-bright" type—was to cheer her up. She wasn't exactly ill, but she was nervous and depressed. Life seemed not to hold the slightest attraction for her. Yet she was well off, and was in the enviable position of being able to gratify any reasonable wish or want.

I did my best to cheer her, but after a day or two I not only knew that I was not succeeding, but felt I was getting in the dumps myself. Thereupon, faced with an effect, I determined to find the cause. And quite suddenly I knew what it was. White!

My bedroom was white—furniture, curtains, toilet ware, wall paper. The floor was linoleum and the dominant color was white. The two rugs were white. The only thing in the room that wasn't white was my own special piece of soap.

The bathroom was all white. And downstairs, in the dining room, there were white curtains, and a white breakfast service on a white tablecloth. And before the fire was spread a beautiful white rug.

It was the breakfast service that gave me the key to my growing depression. Generally, I thoroughly enjoy my breakfast, but white cups and saucers, white plates, white jam-jars, white teapot, white cream jug put me completely "off."

My friend was in her usual sad, resigned, depressed state. Remembering my "cheer-up" mission, I asked if I might, on the morrow, make a few alterations. She didn't mind what I did; she had no curiosity, even, as to my intentions.

I was obliged to take her cook into my confidence, and was lucky enough to gain her as an ally.

Next morning I was down first. I wanted to watch my friend's face when she came to breakfast. It lit up. Some of the depression lifted, and her eyes shone as she said that one word, "Oh!"

A breakfast service of blue and gold blazed on the table; the white muslin window curtains had gone, and apple-green casements were in their place; a ghastly aspidistra that had stood for years and years and years before one of the windows had been displaced in favor of a gorgeous azalea; the white rug had been replaced by a warm-colored Axminster. And for breakfast there were no eggs and no bacon. Instead, there were rissoles, cold salmon and a lovely sole.

My friend, for once, ate a breakfast. And she laughed several times. "It does make a difference, my dear, doesn't it?" she said. And I agreed. Then I told her the truth—that she had been suffering from too much white and too much sameness in food. Eggs and bacon for breakfast 313 times a year, and sausages and bacon 52 times—on Sundays! Eaten off white plates, too!

Now my friend is cured. I pushed her on relentlessly, to make her home colored and cheerful, and when I came away she was as happy as a sandboy. The last touch had been to have her white-painted stairs redone a warm and rich mahogany. No more of the tyranny of white for her!—London Answers.

Advance Copy.

It is well known that orators whose speeches are in demand by the press frequently send copies for publication before the scheduled event. This innocent dodge bespeaks an optimistic trust in fate but it isn't in the same class with the orator who sent 39 pages of typewritten "report" on his coming speech. On page 30 occurred the timely suggestion: "But it is growing late and I must close." His typed report bore this legend in brackets: (Cries of "No, no! Go on! Go on!")

Taking It Out in Trade.

The minister went to the village barber, with whom he was at loggerheads, for a shave. When it was finished he proffered the usual dime.

"I'll take it in preaching," replied the barber, refusing the coin.

"My friend," rejoined the minister, with dignity, "I haven't 10-cent sermons."

"That's all right, sir!" retorted the barber. "I'll have twice!"

The Never-Said.

"Yes, dear; I have been playing poker. I was not detained at the office."

"That hair you found on my shoulder, love, is from my stenographer's head."

"Yes, judge, my home brew has an alcoholic content of six per cent."

"Your honor, I was driving forty-eight miles an hour because I was in a hurry."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

A Little Fun for Himself.

"Well, Vaughn, how's your sweet heart?"

"We're not friends any more."

"Well, you're going to make up, aren't you?"

"Sure, but I'm going to play insure for about a week and spend some of my money on myself."

Miss Peters accompanied by the Gary delegation, returned this morning bringing news of the honors.

"The new state president has been associated with the Gary library for several years and is credited with much of the progressive work which has made the local system so well known. Before coming to Gary, Miss Peters was in charge of the library at Alexandria, Indiana.

INSTANT DEATH

Everett Lester Fell Under Wheels of Moving Train Sunday.

Everett Lester, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Lester, 536 East Rich street, Columbus, was instantly killed Sunday afternoon at Lockbourne when he fell off a Norfolk & Western freight train on which he had been riding. The boy boarded the train in this city to return home. At Lockbourne the train stopped and in starting lurched so violently that he was thrown beneath it and the wheels passed over his body, cutting it completely in two. Both of his legs and arms were broken. The body was taken to Columbus. When his mother was notified she collapsed and is in a serious condition.

Hotel Stenographer BY ROE FULKERSON

"That was a nice letter," said the Hotel Stenographer, putting it back into its envelope. "From a man?" asked the House Detective.

"Yep," answered the girl. "A fellow who travels most of the time. He can surely spread affectionate words over a page like some kid smearing 'apple butter over a large slice of bread."

"Serious?" asked the House Detective.

"Kelly, I will never marry a man because he writes good letters and poor, short checks. I want to marry a guy who has no cramp in his check writing hand."

"Marrying, Kelly is like a lot of other things. A drum major, leading a minstrel show parade, twirling a baton and tossing it up in the air and catching it, seems to be doing something mighty easy. But just try it once.

"Go into a Chinese restaurant and watch an almond-eyed Chinaman eat in rice with a pair of chopsticks. He elevates it with all the ease and grace imaginable. It looks easy, but if you take a pair and try it, it will rain rice all over the neighborhood.

"I saw a girl in a vaudeville show, turn a cartwheel as a finish to a dance. It looked so easy I tried it at a hen party that night and knocked over a piano lamp and sprained my ankle.

"Being married is like that, Kelly. Watching married people, you see only the exhibition part of the sketch. You do not see the rehearsals where they learn to endure one another.

"It looks mighty easy till you try it. "It wouldn't be so bad, Kelly, only you cannot marry without marrying a man. There is the tough part."

"All men ain't tough," comforted Kelly.

Farming Adapted to Given Region

In Making Change Physical Factors Such as Soil and Climate Are Important.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

To stick to cotton or to change to corn and hogs, to grow wheat and oats or to go into dairying, or to change to any other type of farming which may at the time seem to offer more profitable returns than the prevailing type, is a question ever present in great farming regions, and one which is often keenly considered in time of agricultural depression. In attempting to make such changes serious errors are almost certain to be made, says the United States Department of Agriculture, unless those who are directing the movement have a thorough understanding of the forces which control the types of farming adapted to the different regions.

Enterprises Best Adapted.

It is possible, at least in a general way, says the department, to determine what farm enterprises are adapted to a region by studying the physical, biological, and economic conditions prevailing there, and the adaptability of various enterprises to these conditions. An analysis of the types of farming in the United States has been made on this basis and the discussion is presented in Farmers' Bulletin No. 1289, Distribution of Types of Farming in the United States, just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Physical factors such as soil and climatic conditions play an important part in the type of farming adaptable to a given region. Temperature limits the northern distribution of cotton, southern distribution of wheat, and northern distribution of corn. Rainfall and length of growing season are other important factors the effects of which are very apparent in our agriculture.

Factors of Second Class.

The second class of factors discussed in the bulletin is called biological factors. The effect of the boll weevil in reducing cotton acreage near the Gulf and Atlantic coasts is an example. The chinch bug has reduced the acreage of corn in southern Illinois, and the Hessian fly has changed the date of seeding winter wheat and has probably reduced the acreage of this crop in some localities. Many other cases are cited in which insect pests and fungous diseases are determining factors.

In the third class are economic factors, such as cost of transportation and distance from market. Another important one is competition with regions which can produce more cheaply. This last is a factor in limiting the acreage of corn, oats, wheat, barley, and rye in those parts of New England where these crops thrive.

The bulletin aims to make clear the part these fundamental factors play in determining the possibility of establishing on a profitable basis a new or different type of farming, and to show just the kind of farming which prevails is based on them, rather than on the desires or whims of the farmers. A copy of the bulletin may be secured from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., as long as the supply lasts.

Internal Freezing Does Much Harm to Potatoes

Internal freezing injury, or frost necrosis, occurs when potatoes are exposed to severe frosts, temperatures below twenty-eight degrees Fahrenheit. The tubers show dark blotches in the flesh when they are cut open and allowed to stand a short time. The spots are usually most marked at the stem end, but they are scattered irregularly through the outer flesh or in a fine network or ring. Ordinarily the injury is detected only upon cutting, although the affected tubers wilt more than the normal ones in storage.

Potatoes may actually be frozen solid throughout, becoming soft and mushy on thawing. As a result of coming in contact with a cold wall in storage, or being left above the ground before digging, potatoes may freeze on one side. Tubers injured in this way are easily sorted out.

"Turning sweet" is due to prolonged storage at low temperatures, twenty-nine to thirty-four degrees Fahrenheit, not to real freezing. Tubers that have never been frost bitten may show this injury.

Have a good thermometer in the room where potatoes are stored and keep the temperature above twenty-eight degrees Fahrenheit.

When shipping potatoes during cold weather in a heated car, provide for some circulation of air from the stove to prevent black heart in the potatoes near the heat and frost injury in those in the outer parts of the car.

Ducks Kept on Average Farms of Mixed Breeds

There are eleven standard breeds of ducks which have been admitted to the American standard of perfection. These breeds may be divided into three classes: (1) The meat class, including the Pekin, Aylesbury, Muscovy, Rouen, Cayuga, Buff and Swedish; (2) the egg class, represented by the Runner; and (3) the ornamental class, composed of the Call, the Crested White and the Black East India. The ducks commonly kept on many farms are of mixed breeding, and are generally of small size, poor layers, and undesirable types of market duck. Except the Muscovy, all our economic breeds of ducks are said to have originated from the mallard or wild duck

"French Leave."

The familiar expression "to take French leave" arose in the early part of the Eighteenth century, through certain guests in the salons of France, not aware of the higher acts of courtesy, leaving without saying good-by to the host or hostess. The practice spread to society in other countries. Therefore, if a man left without saying good-by to his host it was said he took "French leave."

HOPE TO REDEEM THE ILLITERATES

Ten Million Persons in U. S. Who Cannot Read or Write.

SOME SECTIONS VERY BAD

The census takers at the beginning of each decade are supposed to ask every person in the United States this question, "Can you read and write?" Five million men and women in this country, in round numbers, answered in 1920, "I cannot." They were too honest to deny their illiteracy or, in some cases, were no doubt lacking in pride and sensitiveness about it, or were led by fear of punishment to divulge what, to many illiterates, is their dark secret. Millions, however, failed to confess and deliberately concealed their illiteracy. Some in their ignorance having the conception of Uncle Sam as a meddling old man, decided that their illiteracy was none of his business. Others deluded themselves into thinking that the scrawl which they could trace across the paper was writing, although no one else would ever classify it as such.

In its study of illiteracy conditions the illiteracy commission of the National Educational association has carefully analyzed the statistics gathered by the federal census bureau and has followed the matter into the states and localities whence these reports were made up. The commission is convinced that the census taken by the federal government in 1920 showing 4,931,905 illiterates, and based on the confession of the individual, is not a complete and accurate report. If a careful census were taken in which every individual should be put to the test of reading simple paragraphs in the newspapers and writing simple sentences, the number of illiterates in this country, according to the commission, would approximate 10,000,000 and the number of near-illiterates would be equally as large. Twenty million illiterates and near-illiterates in the United States! It does not take a vivid imagination to see the potentialities in this vast illiterate population, or a mathematician to calculate what they might add to the nation if redeemed.

Confused by Dollar Bill.

Some illiterates are grossly ignorant. A woman who learned recently to read and write said, "I didn't know how ignorant I was. Why, I didn't know a $1 bill from a $2 bill until I was twenty-four years of age." A teacher who taught an illiterate man of thirty exclaimed, "I didn't know such colossal ignorance could exist. I could teach him anything and it would be something that he didn't know. He didn't even know how many months there are in the year." An officer in the American army said in my presence in 1918, "I have three men in my company, native born, who cannot count up to four." Some illiterates have knowledge of a sort, or rather a half-knowledge, which could be speedily extended, completed and adapted to use if connected with the world through education. Davey, the great tree surgeon and author, who learned to read and write after the age of twenty-nine, is one of the numerous examples of this fact.

Inequality of opportunity was never more strikingly pictured than in the illiteracy figures on record at Washington. They tell the story of youths in one section who enjoy the best of opportunities and the tragic story of youths in another who enjoy practically none. There is a state with little more than 1 per cent illiteracy and there is a state with 21.9. There are nine states with little more than 2 per cent of its people illiterate and there are eleven states where 10 per cent of the people are unable to read and write.

Conditions Almost Barbaric.

Numerous counties in the United States have a fraction of 1 per cent illiteracy, and on the other hand, there are fifty-six counties that have more than 30 per cent and 110 counties with more than 25 per cent illiteracy. And there are counties in the United States where more than 50 per cent of the people are unable to read and write.

In the most illiterate sections conditions approach the barbaric. Marriage has no sanctity whatever and commerce is carried on through barter and trade, as when America was roamed over by savage Indians. Morality is rare in these illiterate regions. An exchange of wives for the week-end is a practice carried on in certain of these localities. Here the currency of the country is an unknown medium of exchange, neither silver, gold nor paper money being in circulation anywhere within their precincts. It is needless to add that where the currency of the country does not circulate none of its progressive ideas will penetrate or its plans for human or national welfare prevail.

Crusade Twelve Years Old.

There are some communities where illiterate men have no chance for education unless they go to the penitentiary or join the army, but the illiteracy crusade, which started twelve years ago, is gathering momentum and has now reached most of the states. No provision was made originally in any state school system for the education of adults, and no plan existed prior to 1911 for redeeming illiterates. An individual would now and then teach some illiterate to read and write. Champ Clark used to relate to his fellow congressmen how he taught a man and his two grown daughters after the Civil war. But as a wholesale undertaking the removal of adult illiteracy has waited long. It was generally understood that when one grew up illiterate he was to remain so, no matter how bright his intellect might be or how anxious he was to learn. The school age was fixed at from six to twenty, and no one over that age was supposed to enter school. Most of the states are now making some provision for illiterates either through an organized illiteracy campaign, special schools for adults, home teachers or other methods. True, they are limiting this opportunity to foreign-born illiterates in places, leaving the native-born in illiteracy, and in others are confining the opportunity to those under certain ages.

The barrier of age to educational opportunity must crumble just as the barriers of race, sex, class and religion have given away. In some of the southern states it was once forbidden by law to teach a negro to read and write. The fight for equal educational opportunities for women in the United States was not easily won. As illustrious a personage as Benjamin Franklin was not certain that it was worth while to teach them. He wrote in his autobiography: "A question was somehow or other started between Collins and me as to the propriety of educating the female sex in learning and their ability to study. He was of the opinion that it was improper and I took the contrary side, perhaps a little for dispute's sake."

Many Eager to Learn.

The situation is distinctly hopeful as regards the eagerness of the illiterates for knowledge and their ability to learn. Even those who are said to be the most unapproachable and to care the least for knowledge, the Indian women on the reservations, could be induced to learn and could be taught the rudiments in a few months. There is no letter in the alphabet or word in the English language as difficult to form as the scrolls, whorls and intricate designs they do in bead work and with elk teeth and porcupine quills to adorn the costume of an Indian brave. They are government wards, and an order from "The Great White Father" would put every one of them under instruction.

"The philosopher, the saint, the hero, the wise, the good, the great man very often lies concealed in a plebeian whom proper education might have disinterred and brought to light," said Addison. One wonders how many geniuses might be found among these twenty million if "disinterred and brought to light" and set to serving the nation. If there should be one Booker T. Washington, Edison or Lincoln among them, although it cost $20,000,000 to bring him out, it would be worth the price.—Cora Wilson Stewart, chairman illiteracy commission, National Educational association.

POPE HITS MODERN STYLES

Stringent Rules for Women Who Seek Audience at Vatican.

As a result of the recent sensational incident when 150 women, forming a part of a deputation to the pope, were turned back from the Vatican because their dresses were low at the neck and had short sleeves, the papal majordomo has issued a new set of regulations for dress when being received by the pope at the Vatican in Rome, Italy.

Women must wear dresses covering the arms to the wrist and the neck to the chin, say the regulations. The dresses must be made of thick material and not transparent, and be long enough to reach down to the ankles of the wearer. Dresses giving undue prominence to the figure are discouraged.

Gloves must not be worn, and only wedding or engagement rings may adorn the fingers of intending visitors to the Vatican, who are now submitted to three examinations, viz., first at the door, second at St. Damasus courtyard, and if they pass these posts, their invitation card is crossed with a blue mark. The third examination is made in the papal antechamber, where successful candidates receive a red cross on their cards.

Makeup of any description is strictly forbidden. Hair dye is tolerated, provided it is not of the conspicuous peroxide tint.

Few railroad men can boast of a longer service record with one company than Philip B. Sullivan, Escanaba, Mich., engineer on the Peninsular division of the North Western road.

He will have completed fifty-four years of railroading on the 21st of this month.

Mr. Sullivan had one thrilling experience in his fifty-four years of railroading. It was on Sept. 10, 1871, the day after the great Chicago fire. The engine of the passenger train on which he was braking plunged into the Chicago river a few moments after a tug hit the bridge and broke the locks. The rest of the train did not fall.

Incident

Thought taken from man's servitude into freedom.—Emerson.

NOTED SPEAKER

Everett Colby at M. E. Church Here
Thursday, November 8.

An active Republican in politics, former member of the party's national committee which drafted the tentational committee and one of a sublative platform for the national convention of 1920, Everett Colby, of New York will speak here in the Methodist Episcopal church at the conference on international relations Thursday evening, November 8, as a staunch advocate of full American membership in the League of Nations.

Mr. Colby who is a New York attorney, is chairman of the executive committee of the League of Nations non-Partisan association, an organization whose members, irrespective of party affiliation, believe that the United States should enter the League and assume its full share of responsibility in the work of that body.

HON. EVERETT COLBY.

Three weeks are being given by Mr.
Colby to the series of 33 conferences on international relations being held in Ohio during the period which will culminate with Armistice day, under auspices of state and local councils of churches and a group of affiliated bodies. He will speak at 16 of these meetings on the subjects, "World Problems" and "The Duty of the United States Toward Europe." At the meeting here he will be accompanied by Kirby Page, who has just returned from a trip abroad gathering material for a book on "Is War Justifiable?"

HARTMAN THEATER

The Hartman theater at Columbus is to present George M. Cohan's production of Arthur Goodrich's screamingly funny comedy, "So This is London," three nights beginning Monday, October 29, and a matinee on Wednesday. Dramatic writers extol the play as one of the most artistic, most entertaining and the biggest laughing success the New York stage has known in the past ten years. Furthermore, it is a play everybody loves because of its charming atmosphere, sparkling dialogue and deliciously satirical view presented of the English as the Americans see them and of the Americans as the English see them. It's all delightful foolery most artistically translated by George M. Cohan's special company, which includes Allen H.
Moore, Ralph J. Locke, William Dean,
Reginald Carrington, Donald Hall,
Eugene Shakespeare, Harry Kittridge,
Blossom O'Bryan, Marjorie Dalton,
Eugenie DuBois, Jessamine Newcombe and others. Mail orders should be sent at once.

DISCOVERS GOLD IN WISCONSIN

Prospector Finds Ore Worth $10 a Ton in Bogus Cave Near Richland Center.

Richland Center, Wis.—Wisconsin is now among the gold-producing states of the Union. Ore, containing $10 worth of gold and an ounce of silver in each ton, has been discovered by W. E. Warren, prospector in Bogus cave on Bogus bluff, a mile and a half from Gotham, Richland county.

Assays have been returned to Mr.
Warren with the ore he had tested, which will convince the most dubious.
The ore was exhibited at the Richland county fair.

"I have known that there was gold there for a long time," said Mr. Warren. "I have received assays from other samples tested which proved them to contain between $1 and $8 worth of gold and a little silver."

Mr. Warren believes that this discovery will pay him to install machinery to remove the ore from the ground.

Cave Famous Many Years.

"Ten dollars to the ton is a high percentage for low grade ore," he continued. "And then, too, the deeper I dig the better it gets."

Bogus cave has been famous for many years. Its history is a continuous story of mystery and adventure.

Between 1872 and 1875 it was connected with the operations of a daring gang of counterfeiters. Signals have been seen flashing from Bogus bluff, which were answered as far away as Blue Mound, more than 25 miles.

"I don't believe the counterfeiters ever made their money here," said Mr.
Warren. "The rooms are too dark and too small. They may have used it for a storing place, however."

Before the days of the counterfeiters Bogus cave was a refuge for Indians. Many Indian relics have been unearthed by Mr. Warren in his excavations in the cave.

"In one room I found a white dome-like structure, which must have been used at one time for an altar," said Warren.

Yellow Stone Gave It Name.

The name Bogus bluff did not come from the counterfeit money believed to have been made there, Mr. Warren tells. In 1850 his father began digging around Bogus for gold, and as his efforts were rewarded with only a yellow stone which looked like gold, but was valueless, the neighbors said he was digging "bogus" gold.

Mr. Warren's father was forced to give up his work because of his lack of money. He told his son that some day he must return and continue the enterprise. W. E. Warren was born in 1853, but it was not until three years ago that he could save enough money to return from the West.

The land around Bogus cave is owned by Ward Lamberson, Richland Center. The miners have promised to give Mr. Lamberson one-fifth of what ever they find.

Mr. Warren's father furnished him with a detailed map of the cave which had been given him by an Indian of the Chippewa tribe. It is rather generally believed in Richland county that Mr. Warren is really digging for a buried treasure.

Auto Held Responsible for Lop-Footed Persons

New York.—Observe, as you walk along the streets, the position of the feet of pedestrians. You will be surprised to see that in numerous instances while the left foot is turned outward the right travels in a straight line and often actually "toes in."

The right foot of the Manhattanite seems literally to be following in the footsteps of the moccasin-clad aborigines, from whom his ancestors wrested possession of the soil. They were "pigeon toed." This phenomenon, apparent in all large cities, is of comparatively recent appearance and has hitherto been unnoticed even by physiologists. But of late the tendency to "toe in" with the right foot has become so marked that search has been made for the cause.

This cause has been found to be the automobile. The motorcar accelerator is turning the walking right foot of booted modern man inward to the line of his barefoot primeval ancestors.

Find $5,680 in Waste Paper.

New York.—A man emptying waste paper on the pier at Old Orchard,
Me. found a long, black pocketbook containing $5,680 in checks, cash and notes, and bearing the name Edgar E.
Rhodes. Mr. Rhodes explained that he missed the pocketbook the day before. It is supposed that he laid it on a shelf in his studio and it was brushed into the waste paper basket.

Daughter for Adam and Eve.

London.—Those familiar with the story of the Garden of Eden—and that's everyone—pricked up their ears, figuratively, when it was announced that a daughter had been born to Eve, wife of A. D. Adam, at 28 Myddleton square. It wasn't announced whether the child will bear a biblical name.

"Old Curiosity Shop" Is Sold.

London.—The "Old Curiosity Shop" in Lincoln's Inn fields, familiar to all lovers of Dickens, has been sold for $11,250. The purchaser, J. A.
Phillips, said he bought the shop to preserve it as a curiosity.

Takes His Own Life.

Joseph L. Rihl, a bridegroom of two days was found Wednesday, October 24, lying in the hayloft of the barn at Kingston suffering from a bullet wound in his left temple. A revolver in his hand indicated that the wound was self-inflicted.

The unconscious man was rushed to the City hospital in Chillicothe where he died five minutes after arrival.

He was married on the preceding
Monday to Miss Marjorie Smith, daughter of Mrs. William Noble. He was 28 years old, the son of the late Adam Rihl. His mother, Mrs. Mary
Rihl, survives him.

Didn't Use His Weapons.

A dog stolen in New York had three gold teeth and wore a collar studded with a hundred brilliant stones. If he had been a real dog, he would have sunk those three gold teeth into the thief. —Minneapolis Journal.
